YOUNG GIRLS.

INTERESTING CONCLUSIONS.

Letters Agree on One Vital Subject.

Young girls, to the thinking mind, are ever subjects of the deepest interest.

Some lead lives of luxury, while others toil for more existence. Separate, how ever, as their paths in life may be, Nature demands of them the same obedience. All are subject to the same physical laws, and suffer in proportion to their violation.

Young girls are timid through modesty, and often withhold what ought to be told.

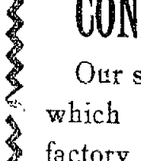

Yet they are not to blame, for information on such subjects has been withheld from them, owing to the false interpretation of a mother's duty.

In such cases they should do as thousands of young ladies are doing every day: write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., giving as nearly as possible their symptoms, and receive her freely given advice and timely aid.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the young girl's most trusty friend. It can be obtained of any druggist, and speedily relieves and cures irregularities, suspension, retention, and all derangements of the womb and ovaries.

It banishes promptly all pains, headache, backache, faintness, nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholia, etc. Young girls must know that self-preservation is the first law of nature.

THE Indiana state legislature will bid us good-bye today. The one good feature of their session was the passage of the Nicholson bill.

THE joint resolution for the centennial celebration of the organization of Indiana territory has been passed by the legislature and the event will be a memorable one in the history of the state.

TWO THOUSAND Chinese were killed or wounded in a battle with the Japanese at Tien-Chwang-Tai. The Japs' loss was but ninety. At this rate, even with their vastly more populous country, the Chinese could not be expected to hold out very long against their more vigorous adversary.

THE announcement is made that flaws have been discovered in the Roby winter racing bill, which will make it inoperative. The Roby gang did all they could to defeat the passage of the bill and now that it is a law we may expect them to continue their kicking, but it will probably do them no good.

IT is to be hoped that there is truth in the report that Ohio coal operators will raise the price of coal and give the miners living wages. That's one increase of price on necessities the people can stand. If it is known that a fair portion of the increase goes to the miners there will be no protest against the increased price of coal. But the public will not tolerate any increase that will go into the coffers of the coal roads and operators and leave the miners no better off than they are now. Let the price of coal go up if the miner's wages go up with it.

The Nicholson Bill.

No measure that has been introduced in our state legislature for years has created such widespread interest, and for which there was such a general sentiment in favor of its passage, as the Nicholson bill, which passed both houses and will now be the law of the state for the regulation of the liquor traffic. It is a long step forward in the way of better government and it is safe to say that three fourths of the people in the state, without regard to party, are heartily glad that it has been placed upon the statute books of Indiana.

The Nicholson bill is not a radical measure. It is not prohibition. It does not take away from men their privilege of drinking intoxicating liquors if they desire to do so. It simply throws around the business of selling alcoholic beverages such safe guards as will tend to lessen its evils and make easier and possible an enforcement of our present liquor laws, and as such it will prove a good measure and be of lasting benefit to the people all over the state. To the saloonkeeper who desires to obey the law it can have no terrors. It only affects the lawbreaker and to him it means that he must respect the law's majesty and regulate his business by the provisions of legislative enactment. The Nicholson bill can work injustice to no one. It stands for progress, for right, for the protection of home, and is in a word a law which will do much to check the evils that have heretofore come from the traffic in intoxicating drinks.

The one feature of the bill which makes any addition to the present law is that section which permits a majority of the resident voters of a district to prevent the issuance of a license in a specific case. Such a feature is surely in the line of right and the foundation of popular government. The people will decide whether they want the saloon or not. Is not such a feature right? Is it so outrageous a thing that for existence of a saloon—the ministering angel of evil to passions that rend men and work woe and disaster—a majority of the voters shall be the determining power? The Nicholson bill is a good law.

New Forage Plant.

The island of Saghalien, lying between Japan and Siberia, has given to the world a plant that promises to be as valuable as alfalfa for grazing purposes, and it has the advantage of growing where alfalfa will not thrive. The new plant is called sacaline. It resists drought as no other vegetable growth can. It is also adapted to wet and swampy places. Its roots are tremendous and spread all around, and that is why it can thrive anywhere.

Sacaline has been tested as a forage plant in Iowa and in California, and in both states it has met unqualified approval. Swampy, ragged spots where nothing else will grow may be planted with it, and it will quickly cover the ground and afford food alike to sheep, horses, cattle and swine. It grows to a height of 14 feet. Another name for it is giant knot weed. Attention was first drawn to it as a forage plant in France two years ago. A great drought was on, and pastures were dried up. Sacaline had been planted and reared to a considerable extent as an ornamental growth. But during the drought it was observed that domestic animals ate it greedily and fattened on it, while the more it was browsed at the more it grew. The idea was then conceived of cultivating it as a domestic forage plant, which was done with great success.

Sacaline will be especially valuable at the time the pasture fields of the country dry up in August and September. It is to be hoped the agricultural stations in all the states will test it thoroughly for farmers and put them in the way of procuring it if its value is equal to what is claimed for it.

The Electric Railway Is Here.

Farsighted railway presidents and stockholders saw several years ago that the electric road would play havoc with their suburban travel. Electric transit is cheaper, swifter and cleaner than that having steam as its motive power. Already the steam roads in the vicinity of the large cities have been materially damaged by the electric car.

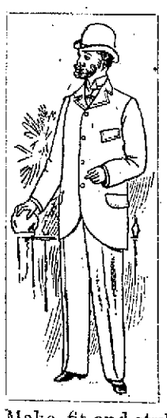

Seeing this, wise railway managers have been for some time preparing to make their enemy their friend by themselves constructing the electric railway. One great consolidated railway company is now preparing to gridiron New York, New Jersey and most of New England with the swift and convenient trolley track. For all distances within 50 miles or thereabouts of a large city the steam road will be paralleled by one whose cars are propelled by electricity. Towns and villages that have heretofore enjoyed the benefits of no railway of any kind are to be tapped and electric lines built to connect them with the company's nearest long distance road. Feeders of this kind will be constructed in all thickly populated regions through which the steam road runs.

The convenience to the public of these electric lines can hardly be computed. They will carry passengers and freight cheaper than the long lines can do. They will run at all hours, making it an easy matter to go from one city to another at any time. They will build up even the distant suburbs of the large cities as no agency has yet done.

The Aurora (Ills.) Daily Express 13 years ago made the experiment of inviting school boys and girls to act as amateur reporters and send in happenings from their neighborhoods. A prize of $10 was given to the best of those young newspaper people. The Express remarks in a recent editorial that some very good reporters were developed by the experiment. Harry Clayton, the youth who took the prize, is now permanently employed on The Express itself. George Denny was another of the young contestants, and he is now on the editorial staff of the Knoxville Whig. Another, Ernest Downer, became a printer. Not a few of the bright young amateur reporters distinguished themselves in after life in various ways.

The Japanese Admiral Ito is equal to any European in finesse and diplomacy. When Admiral Freemantle and his staff visited Ito after he had taken Port Arthur, several of the English officers asked Ito if they might not have some of the captured souvenirs of the fight. Trophies of all kinds were lying about the citadel in profusion. Admiral Ito readily granted the request and added to his polished courtesy by offering to send the trophies to the English man-of-war. He insisted on this courtesy toward the British officers. That evening each officer received, with the compliments of Admiral Ito, a fine Remington rifle which the English nation had sold to the Chinese and which had been captured by the Japs.

A young man once went to the poet Whittier for advice as to the best thing to do in starting out in life. Whittier told him to place himself among the advocates of some noble but unpopular cause and "suffer with it till its day of triumph." That was what Whittier himself did, and his career shows his advice was sound.

AN EXPOSITION VETERAN.

The Atlanta Exposition's European Agent Has Witnessed Fairs Galore.

Chevalier A. Macchi, the European commissioner of the Cotton States and International exposition to be held in Atlanta next fall, has been connected with great expositions in various parts of the world for nearly a score of years. He is a native of Italy and is a member of an old house doing business in Italy and England. His first exposition work was in 1878, when he was appointed a commissioner to the Paris exposition by the Italian government. Since then he has represented his government at the Amsterdam exposition in 1883, the Health exposition in London the following year, the Inventors' exposition, London, in 1885, the Liverpool exposition in 1886, Manchester and Newcastle exposition in 1887, Italian exposition in 1888 and the Paris exposition in 1889.

CHEVALIER MACCHI.

In 1890 he represented the Austrian government at the Edinburgh exposition, and his next appointment was commissioner to the Jamaica exposition for Italy and France. He was a member of the board of commissioners of the London expositions of 1891 and 1892 and was later appointed commissioner general to attend the Monaco fair. At the World's fair in Chicago he represented the Italian government and was appointed one of the judges for the art group. From Chicago he went to the California Midwinter fair with an interesting Italian exhibit. He speaks English fluently, and his long experience in exposition work on the other side of the Atlantic makes him the most valuable agent the Atlanta exposition could possibly secure. Most of the European governments have declined to participate officially in the fair, but Chevalier Macchi will appoint a commissioner of high standing in each country, and first class exhibits from England, France, Germany, Belgium, Russia and other countries will be secured.

A FAMOUS FINANCIER.

Banker Morgan Is a Giant Among the Magnates of Wall Street.

Mr. John Pierpont Morgan, the New York banker who has been prominently before the public as the principal agent in negotiating the recent government bond issue, has long been recognized as one of the ablest financiers in the country. For many years he was at the head of the famous firm of Drexel,

J. PIERPONT MORGAN.

Morgan & Co., which has recently been changed to J. P. Morgan & Co. He has been conspicuously successful as a reorganizer of railroads, and as such the Vanderbilt powers bow to him. It is said that he was the only man in Wall street whom the late Jay Gould feared, and he proved his metal in many contests with the "wizard."

Mr. Morgan is a son of Junius Spencer Morgan, a famous banker in his day, who was associated with George Peabody, the philanthropist, whose centenary was celebrated recently. His mother was a daughter of John Pierpont, the poet. He was born in Hartford April 17, 1837, and completed his school education at Gottingen, Germany. Then his real education began in the banking and brokerage firm of Dabney, Morgan & Co., of which he was the junior member. He improved his opportunities to such good effect that he now stands the foremost financier of New York city and possesses a fortune that is variously estimated from $40,000,000 to $60,000,000.

Mr. Morgan is not exactly a popular man. He is very attentive to business and seldom appears in public or in society. He has a town house in Madison avenue, New York, and a fine country seat on the west bank of the Hudson below West Point. He has been twice married, and his second wife is a niece of Benjamin F. Tracy, President Harrison's secretary of the navy. He has three daughters and one son, J. Pierpont, Jr., who has already made a name for himself in Wall street.

Mr. Morgan's personality is thus described by Gath, the well known correspondent: "He is pretty big, decidedly fierce, of high, nervous action, with a large port wine nose, and a pair of dark eyes, and a mixture of the eagle and the vulture. He is attractive the moment he wants to be, and many people wish he wanted to. * * * You have known perhaps the feeble and smiling Drexels and wondered where their fiscal genius was secreted, but when you see this, their partner, you wonder where to secrete yourself."

Mr. Morgan has given many large sums to charity. One of his most notable benefactions was a contribution in 1892 of $500,000 for the extension of the New York trade and technical schools.

The federal fish commission bred and set free at Wood's Holl, Mass., in 1894 over 90,000,000 infant lobsters.

The highly talented composer and leader, also director of the famous Chautauqua School of Music, Prof. W. F. Sherwin, commends the World's Sweetest Songs in substance as follows: "They are a most charming collection for the home circle. The selections show fine taste and excellent judgment, while the variety is wonderful, stretching away from the simple Cradle Song to Haydn's Aria "With Verdure Clad." They will bring genial sunshine and refinement to the home." tf

A PASSING ACQUAINTANCE

IN A MOUNTAIN hotel a gay group of boarders were seated about in hall and parlor, engaged in fancy work, reading, or light games, while a cheery fire burned brightly on the hearth, for it was late in the season.

"We are just a nice party now," said one young lady, looking up from her lapful of shaded silks; "I hope nobody else will come."

"Except to fill vacancies as we drop off," said a gentleman as he laid aside his letters. "You will see two vacant chairs at the table to-morrow."

"Very well," was the reply. "If you must go we will spread ourselves and keep the table full. If we can't have Mrs. Bruce and you we don't want anyone."

The next morning the home-bound travelers left on the early stage, and at the last moment another guest decided to accompany them.

The party remaining went out, some to ramble in the pine woods, some to the concert in the casino. Returning toward dinner time they found that a telegram had been received from Miss Millicent Paul, bespeaking a room. There was a shout of delight on reading the telegram. Millicent Paul was known to some of the party, and two of them had been her schoolmates at a fashionable seminary three years before.

"Millicent will be the roseleaf on our cup of happiness," said one; "and how fortunate that there is room for her at our table."

The dinner bell rang, and the merry group betook themselves to the dining room. Two chairs were turned down at the table.

"Who has come?" the guests inquired of one another.

As they took their seats a man and his wife entered, in a hesitating manne, and were given the two chairs. Swift glances were directed at them, and side looks exchanged. They were evidently plain, hard-working people, entirely unaccustomed to traveling and to hotel life. In an instant the original party became a clique. They hardly concealed their dislike of the newcomers, who had brought among them a personality that jarred on all their sense of what was stylish, conventional and agreeable. The two strangers ate heartily, helped themselves to what they wanted, finished their meal and left the table before the rest of the company had reached their nuts and raisins.

"Did you ever?" "I call it an outrage, forcing such people on us." "The plowman had better stay at home and plow." "His hands took away my appetite." "I hope they are not going to stay over night."

The offending couple spent the afternoon walking about to see the views, and then sat out in the piazza till supper time. After supper the criticisms recommenced.

"They're going to stay. Their trunk has gone up to No. 14." "What will Millicent Paul say? She will have to sit next to them." "She will freeze them with one glance when she sees that hand reaching in front of her for the butter."

"Oh, come now!" said the brother of the last speaker, "you knew they needed the butter and you should have passed it, seeing the waiter was not on hand."

"Hush! I'm too provoked for anything. We were such a nice party till those folks pushed in. And when Millicent is coming, too! It just spoils the table."

Next day, while the newcomers were out, Millicent Paul arrived, amid the welcoming exclamations of her friends. She was a tall, slender girl, with an animated countenance; fashionably dressed, carrying gold eyeglasses, and holding her head aloft in a way peculiarly her own. She had plenty to say, said it well and was at once the center of everything.

At dinner she took the vacant seat, and was just receiving her plate of soup when the much criticised couple came in. The guests were all consciously watchful, but Miss Paul seemed to notice nothing. She was giving a vivid description of her journey. Suddenly she paused an instant.

"I beg your pardon!" she said pleasantly, as her embarrassed neighbor attempted, rather awkwardly, to reach the salt, and, placing it conveniently near, she resumed her description.

"May I truble you for the pepper?" she asked him a little later; "not black, I prefer white. Thank you." And she spoke in exactly the same tone as when she asked handsome young Mr. Waring across the table if he knew when the mail went out. He admired her none the less for it.

"She has a broader outlook than the rest of us," he thought to himself.

A trip to the Notch was planned for the next day; to go in the morning and return at night. There were enough to fill two mountain wagons. No, not quite enough. Those who counted found there would be room for two more.

"Don't mention it, or Mr. Wilbur and his wife may offer to go," said one lady, with a touch of irritation in her voice.

"Oh, we can't have them," said one of the girls who had been Miss Paul's school-mate, "can we, Millicent?"

"Why not?" asked Miss Paul.

"Oh! why, because—you know—no doubt they are excellent people, but how they would look along with us."

"My dear Hetty," said Miss Paul, "why be narrow? Why voluntarily live in a groove? I have found the most interesting people in the most unexpected places. Don't turn your back upon your fellow creatures."

Mr. Waring stepped into the hall where the Wilburs stood diffidently examining a last year's register.

"Would you like to take the trip to the Notch to-morrow with the rest of the party?" he asked cordially.

"We would like it very much," said the man.

"Very much indeed!" echoed the wife. The expense is three dollars for each seat."

"That is all right," said the man.

"And now which of us will have to sit next to them?" murmured the girls in the parlor.

But when the teams were ready the next morning it was Miss Paul who gracefully and unconcernedly climbed over the wheel and sat by the Wilburs. It was not that she preferred the seat, except that she felt instinctively that they were at a little disadvantage with the others, and it was, perhaps, one secret of her perfect bearing in social circles that her private rule of politeness was the little old fashioned couplet:

"Politeness is to do and say
The kindest thing in the kindest way."

The party was a merry one; they sang songs and waved the hotel colors as they drove along, each wagon drawn by four splendid white horses. They stopped at the lake to enjoy the boating and to hear the echo. While they floated on the water Miss Paul sang two or three Venetian boat songs, to the great delight of the party.

"I learned those of our dark eyed gondolier," she said.

The Notch was at its grandest that day and the mountain ridges stood high and clear against the cloudless sky. There were other parties out, a tally-ho coachful and several teams coming from different directions; but noon time found them all either dining at the nearest hotel or lunching in the woods close by.

A party of southerners, driving up in a surrey, spied Millicent Paul and hailed her enthusiastically. She brought them to her own party under the trees and said, as she presented them:

"These travelers are from Georgia. We met in Washington last winter and became friends."

Mr. Wilbur experienced a slight mental shock. His father had lost both legs in the war, and he himself had never thought of a southerner except as a foe at heart. Yet here were these people bowing to him with the rest, in cordial, pleasant fashion.

Language had not been given to Mr. Wilbur for the purpose of concealing his thought. He looked earnestly at the stranger nearest him.

"I never expected to meet a southern man," he said in blunt tones. "My father was made a cripple in the war."

"And mine lost his life," replied the southern man gently. "But it is all over now. You and I have one country."

"So we have—so we have!" said Mr. Wilbur, and the two shook hands silently. This scene escaped the notice of the rest of the company, who had at once engaged in lively conversation; but to both men it was one of those little strokes that help to chisel character.

"Oh, what a beautiful, beautiful day among the mountains this has been!" said Millicent Paul when they were homeward bound. "I hope you have enjoyed it, too, Mrs. Wilbur."

"I have, very much. I shall never forget it," said the quiet little woman, her face glowing.

The Wilburs left the next day. Miss Paul shook hands with them when they went, and most of the others did the same. They went away happy and satisfied. They said to each other it had been a good holiday. It was a little awkward at first among strangers, but it had all ended pleasantly and they had seen so much.

"Are you going to correspond with them, Millicent?" asked her old schoolmate, teasingly.

"Hetty, dear," said Millicent, "you really must open your eyes wider and see the world you live in; you will find it will repay you. The Wilburs are only passing acquaintances, like many others; we may never meet them again. But, in conversing, I found out one or two things which may interest you. When Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur were married, ten years ago, his mother had just died and there were brothers and sisters beside the crippled father to be cared for. Mrs. Wilbur and her husband put their shoulders cheerfully to the wheel and worked together. It was farm life and farm work. The father died a year ago and the brothers and sisters now take care of themselves. So, this year, when haying and canning were over, the Wilburs decided to take a little holiday and see the mountains. Neither of them ever saw a mountain before. It has been the great event of their lives. I can not tell you how glad I am that they went with us yesterday."

"So am I," said Hetty.

"Another little thing came out, too. I found out where they live. They told me it was close by the Shore Line railroad, a mile from the smallest Rhode Island station, a small red farm house with two apple trees and a garden in front. 'With a box border,' I exclaimed, 'two rows of pinks, the bluest larkspurs in the world, and the reddest poppies?' 'Yes, that was it,' she said. Why, girls, I always look at that house and garden when I travel by that road, and have often wondered who lived there. Now I know."

"Girls," said Hetty, after Millicent left the room to get the pillow cover she had promised to show them, "I feel like a grub! Shall I ever be a butterfly? And do you wonder that every body loves Millicent Paul?"—New York Independent.

They're Not Green, Anyway.

Some slow and lingering punishment should be dealt at the fiend who said that there was not much difference between a grass widow and a grasshopper because either is sure to jump at the first chance. At the same time, young men may make a note of it that grass widows are not green.

THE SHAKERS' TREATMENT FOR DYSPEPSIA.

More than a hundred years ago, the Shakers established one of their colonies or families among the beautiful hill of Columbia county, New York. Removed from the bustle and worry of the outside world, these patient and peaceful people have devoted their time largely to the study and investigation of the drugs with which our American woods are so abundantly supplied.

We read a great deal in the papers nowadays about remedies for the blood, for rheumatism, for kidney trouble, for neuralgia, for asthma, for consumption and a thousand and one other diseases, but it remained for the Shakers to discover that the diseases are in most cases caused by poisons developed from the fermentation and putrefaction of food in the stomach which has not been properly digested—in other words, from indigestion.

We all know that tainted meat is poisonous and it makes no difference whether it has become spoiled through exposure in a butcher shop, or because it has lain undigested in the stomach.

It, therefore, we would cure these diseases, let us put an axe to the root of the tree. In other words so strengthen the digestive organs that they will properly perform their functions when aches and pains, weakness and nervousness will promptly give way to health and strength.

As soon as careful observation had convinced the Shakers that their theory was correct, they set about to devise a harmless remedy, which should act as a tonic to the digestive organs. The now famous Shaker Digestive Cordial was the result.

If you are a confirmed invalid, not knowing just what is the trouble, or one of those unhappy souls who are occasionally depressed after a hearty meal, try this preparation. It cannot hurt the most delicate child, and yet is so prompt in its effect that the Shakers have placed small 10 cent sample bottles in the hands of the druggists, confident that if once used the benefit will be so marked that it will be continued.

No matter what your trouble may be, an improvement in the tone and strength of the digestive organs is the first essential to recovery.

SHE INSURES WOMEN.

Mrs. Starkweather Believes They Are Much Better Risks Than Men.

One of the most successful among the women breadwinners of the United States is Mrs. Louisa A. Starkweather, who superintends the woman's department of a large life insurance company in St. Louis and receives for her services a salary larger than that of a United States senator, it is said. For many years she has earned an unusually large salary for a woman. She was at one time a school teacher at $1,800 a year, but relinquished that occupation because she did not get a $2,400 position that she considered herself entitled to. She has since demonstrated that her services are worth twice as much as the coveted position paid, and it is said that her income this year will approach very near the $10,000 mark. She has spent 12 years in life insurance work and is now at the head of her department, with a large force of assistants subject to her direction. She is 48 years of age, but looks much younger.

LOUISA A. STARKWEATHER.

"I am a solicitor of insurance on the lives of women exclusively for the reason that women are such important financial factors nowadays," she says. "Women are heavy holders of bank stock, they own and operate mines, they speculate in real estate and cattle and are merchants and manufacturers. Throughout the United States they represent millions in capital, and it is said on good authority that in 1893 the taxation on woman's property in Kansas paid the entire running expenses of the state for that year.

"Women are living better, and therefore are better risks for companies than were our grandmothers. I have in mind a number of young old women—namely, Elizabeth Cady Stanton at 79 even manages a typewriter; Miss Susan B. Anthony at 74 is both active and useful; Julia Ward Howe at 75 does not fail to give her essays and poems as she did 50 years ago; Mrs. Henry Ward Beecher at 82 is supporting herself by her pen; Mrs. Gilbert at 74 and Mrs. John Drew at 76 are both young and as graceful in the minuet as they were 40 years ago; Mrs. D. P. Bowers, 70, and Maggie Mitchell, over 60, are still charming as they enter the realm of old age."

THE GREAT HATCHET STORY.

Said to Have Been Invented by Weems, First Biographer of Washington.

There wasn't any hatchet. There wasn't any cherry tree. There wasn't any conjunction between a hatchet and a cherry tree. There wasn't any "Father, I cannot tell a lie. I did it with my little hatchet." The famous story about Washington, so the latter day historian tells us, was a fairy tale invented by Mason L. Weems, the first biographer of Washington, for the purpose of impressing Young America with the great youthful virtue of the first president. Weems was a Maryland preacher who wrote biographies and sold them and other books, who was an ardent temperance reformer, and who would as readily scrape a fiddle at a dance as preach from the pulpit. He was born in Maryland Oct. 1, 1759, was educated for the ministry in London and returned to America a regular minister of the Church of England.

He married Fanny Elwell of Virginia in 1795 and resided at Bellaire, Va. He was not attached to any particular parish, but preached wherever he happened to be. He frequently occupied the pulpit at Pohick, and Washington often heard him expound the gospel. He formed a connection with Matthew Carey, a Philadelphia publisher, and sold his books throughout Maryland and Virginia, traveling from place to place with a wagon load of literary wares. He cared little for creed and would fill any pulpit regardless of denomination. Just 95 years ago he published the first life of Washington. It was called "A History of the Life and Death, Virtues and Exploits of General George Washington, Faithfully Taken From Authentic Documents." The book had a great sale, and one of its anecdotes of the young Washington became a national joke. Later biographers were unable to find any evidence establishing the truth of the stories, and there seems little doubt that the imaginative Weems invented them. He afterward wrote lives of William Penn, Francis Marion and Benjamin Franklin, and died at Beaufort, S. C., May 28, 1825.

A Lump of Lead in His Stomach.

H. S. Buchanan, Decorator, 126 West Sixth street, Indianapolis, says: "For years, after eating, I would feel as if I had a lump of lead in my stomach. This, with a soureness rising into my mouth, would make me feel miserable beyond the power of words to tell. I have taken one box of LYON'S SEVEN WONDERS and it has done me a world of good. I can confidently recommend it to anyone afflicted with dyspepsia or stomach trouble of any kind.

DEATH OF MR. CROPSEY

Was Depot Master at Chicago for Twenty-two Years.

A Negro Tramp Comes to Grief at Upper Sandusky—School of Electricity—Local Gossip.

A. C. Cropsey died at Crown Point yesterday, after an illness dating from October, 1893. The remains will be taken to Freesport, N. Y., for interment. Mr. Cropsey was depot master at Chicago for the Pennsylvania company from May, 1871, up to the fall of 1893, when he was taken ill and was succeeded by Thomas Glenn, formerly of this city. The news of his death will be received with sorrow in Pennsylvania railway circles and by the traveling public.

TRAMP HURT.

Thomas Hall, conductor on second No. 74, of the Pittsburg, had difficulty with a party of tramps in Ohio this morning. At Kirkby the hobos were driven from the train, but they immediately climbed on again. When the train reached Upper Sandusky, Mr. Hall and his crew again ordered the men off and they obeyed with the exception of one negro named Henry Wells, who became stubborn and drew a knife, which he threatened to use upon the trainmen. Mr. Hall struck the darkey a terriffic blow with his fist, knocking him off the car. The fellow fell upon his head and was considerably stunned. He was picked up and carried into the freight house office, where an examination showed that his injuries were trifling, consisting chiefly of a contusion on the parietal bone The marshal of Upper Sandusky took charge of Wells and turned him over to the township trustee Wells is now in the county infirmary at Upper Sandusky.

SCHOOL OF ELECTRICITY

Tomorrow evening, at their room in the City Y M C A building, will meet the Fort Wayne branch of the National School of Electricity This class was organized last July and has been regular in its weekly meetings ever since. The manner in which its members have taken to the study of electricity, clearly shows the long felt want of such a class in every city and town where young men are growing up unacquainted, technically, with the enormous and widespread applications of electricity surrounding them. Since its organization the following subjects have been taken up and gone into minutely, leaving nothing to be desired

Nature and properties of electricity.
Frictional electricity and its generators.
Electric batteries and electricity produced by chemical action
Nature and properties of magnetism.
Magnetic fields and the magnetic effects of electric currents
Miscellaneous effects of electric currents.
Laws governing the flow of electricity.
Heating effects of electric currents
Construction of electrical instruments.
Measurement of electrical resistance
Theory and operation of telegraphs
Theory and operation of telephones.
Principles of dynamos and motors
Arc lighting and its machinery.
Incandescent lighting and power transmission.

The manufacture of incandescent lamps and many other subjects too numerous to mention.

The last meeting of the class was held at the new laboratory of the electric light works, where many curious and wonderfully interesting experiments were performed to the thorough enjoyment of the entire class Some of the experiments were as follows·

A copper ring, weighing two pounds, was poised in mid air by being acted upon by alternating impulses or waves of magnetism Incandescent and arc lights were operated without being in contact with the source of currents, or, in other words, the lamps could be lighted up with plate glass or any other insulator of any convenient thickness interposed between the lamps and the wires carrying the electric current from the dynamo An electric shotgun, in which a piece of aluminum tubing, was thrown the entire length of the laboratory from an insolated rod, and without being in contact with any wires.

Water was boiled in five seconds over a sheet of tissue paper, handkerchief, straw hat or one's own hand. Rods of iron and steel half an inch in diameter were melted asunder and welded together in the same time. The magnetism was taken out of watches in less time than it takes to tell it, and hosts of other electrical phenomena just as wonderful as the foregoing to the un initiated.

The class instructors are Messrs Arthur Hadley and Thomas Duncan, both of the engineering staff of the electric light works.

It must be borne in mind that in all the demonstrations and lectures the apparatus itself is before the class, so that it is not merely what is popularly called book learning, but actual theory and practice combined, the ideal as it were. This has in itself made the undertaking a colossal success, by stimulating a desire in each member to let nothing pass unobserved, whenever or whatever his curiosity might dictate.

A MEMBER.

BRIEF MENTIONS.

The Two Johns company went to Wabash last night.

Ben Boyce, of the Bass blacksmith shop, is sick and off duty.

H. B. Tobey left over the Wabash this morning for St. Louis

Engineers Henry Jones and Mike Nolan, of the Pittsburg, are sick and off duty.

Machinist W. H. Moss, of the Wabash shops, spent Sunday with friends at Garrett City, Ind.

C. S. Knight, of the electric works, went to New York yesterday on business for the company

Jimmy Burns, son of the Pittsburg blacksmith, has taken a position at the Standard Wheel works.

Andy Brillhart, of the electric works, is kept from his shop duties by the illness of one of his children

Luther Wright, of the Wabash paint shop, has gone to the company's hospital at Peru, for treatment

Ed Claytor, of Nottingham, Ind, spent Sunday in the city, the guest of his father-in-law, Joseph Carry.

Mrs John Zuber, who has been very ill, is recovering. Her husband is a car builder, employed at the east shops

Theodore Kucher went to Pullman this morning to assist Frank Sweringen in inspecting cars for the Pennsylvania company.

H. Brake and E Burkholder, painters, have been employed to paint the Pittsburg shops at this point. They will be assisted by John Ohneck, of the easts hops. The buildings of the entire plant will be painted inside and out, with the exception of the brick walls.

Joseph Martin spent Sunday in the city with his folks. He is now conducting a plumbing business in Hartford City.

Misses Lydia Doemer and Rose Weber, who were sick several days, resumed work at the electric works this morning

Capt R. H. Harrison resumed charge of affairs at the iron machine department of the car shops today after a weeks' illness.

Chick Stahl signed with a ball club last Saturday and as soon as the season opens, he will resign his place at the Pittsburg shops.

Amil Deister, of the Bass machine shop, had one of his fingers pinched in the gearings of a lathe last Saturday. He is off duty for repairs

Mrs George Wilcox, wife of the Pittsburg painter, has recovered from a severe illness and Mr. Wilcox has resumed his work in the shops

Frank Turner, apprentice in the Wabash machine shop, who had been sick at the Peru hospital, returned and reported for duty this morning.

John Wolf and George Foughnought, of the Bass machine shop, who were off duty several days on account of injuries received, returned to work this morning

District Passenger Agent R G Thompson, who accompanied Dr T J Dills to California, left Los Angeles last Saturday and will arrive home next Thursday

Thomas Kavanaugh, blacksmith at the Wabash shops, has returned from Chicago, where he was called some days ago by a letter stating that his brother was very ill

Peter Berg, of the Pittsburg blacksmith shop went to his work this morning with his face wreathed in smiles His happiness is due to the arrival of a son at his home.

W J. Manion, of the electric works, has returned from a pleasure trip through the south He visited Florida and Louisiana and was at New Orleans during the Mardi Gras

The Pennsylvania company's coal docks in this city have a storage capacity of 30 000 tons and they are to be filled to that extent. Already 12 000 tons have been placed in them

Abe Fisher, general foreman of the Pennsylvania car shops at Wellsville, Ohio, spent Sunday in this city Mr. Fisher was at one time foreman of the company's lumber yards in this city.

L. A Buchanan, J. Wink, W. McDowell, C F. Scott, G W. Jackson and E E Blackburn, Nickel Plate brakeman, who had been on the off duty list for various reasons, reported yesterday

Thomas Hibbins, slate roofer for the Pittsburg, came down from Chicago Saturday to spend Sunday with his family. He is now engaged in putting a new roof on the round house at Chicago.

The Nickel Plate has put on two more freight crews on this end of the line. They are Conductors Meridith and Houder and Brakemen C. B. Snyder and S C Spangler. They went to Stony Island yesterday to get their cabooses

John Buechader, who has been lying in Harper's hospital at Detroit for some weeks, writes friends here that he is improving and hopes to soon be able to leave the hospital Mr Buechader is a frequent visitor here and is well known by many of our citizens.

Senator H. G Davis, in his private car Mayflower, came down from Chicago on Pittsburg train No 6 this morning and went to Grand Rapids on No. 7. He will return tomorrow on his way to Baltimore. Mr Davis is the president of the West Virginia, Central and Pittsburg road.

A broken brakebeam caused the derailment of two cars in the second section of Pittsburg train No 72 at 2 15 o'clock this morning No 15 and No 4, passenger trains, were each delayed thirty minutes by the accident The wreck crew from this city was called out. The accident happened at Larwill

Grip seems to be most prevalent among shopmen, other classes of people being nearly exempt from it. Some of the factories are short on help because of the ravages of the disease among the employes. Among those who are now down with the grip is William Bendure, of the Fort Wayne Furniture works, who has been unable to work for over a week.

Mr. Charles McFadden, a widely known railroad contractor, died at Philadelphia last week His work as a contractor was chiefly confined to eastern states, Pennsylvania in particular, and few, if any, contractors who confined their operations to these states, built so many miles of railroad. In early life he was engaged on the Pittsburg division of the Pennsylvania railroad

A press dispatch from Denver reports that the pay car of the Union Pacific was followed over the road on its last trip by a gang of swindlers who bought up employees' checks in large numbers, raising them to $110 each, and then passed them on storekeepers and others for small purchases, receiving considerable amounts of money in change. It is said they worked in nearly every town where any considerable number of employees are located.

Conductor Buckhouse, who lives at Lima, where small pox is supposed to be lurking at present, and runs on the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton road between that city and Toledo, is a practical joker. To frighten the yard men at Toledo, he told them his house at Lima was quarantined, but he "wouldn't stay in for anybody and when the time came for me to go out on my run I escaped from the house and here I am" The men knew Buckhouse was joking, but they pretended to believe him, and were afraid, apparently, to go near him Calling the yardmaster to their assistance they concocted a scheme by which the joker was made to pay dearly for his fun. An engine coupled onto Buckhouse's caboose, took it three miles down the track and set it upon a gravel pit siding where it and the conductor were compelled to remain all day.

In locomotive and car building the outlook for business is brightening

Charles T. Strawbridge of the Bass offices, is bedfast with the grip He was taken ill with a chill at first, last Saturday, and is now quite sick

Nickel Plate engine men who are on the off duty list Engineer Lynch, taking a rest, Firemen J S Lee, John Lalander and Henry Rose, sick

Barney Smith, an engineer on the Chicago division of the Panhandle road, has fallen heir to $175,000 by the death of an aunt in New York

Nickel Plate engine 26 blew out a cylinder head while en route with a freight train to this city yesterday She managed to get in with her train

Mrs C Wyman, of Huntington, Ind, has been appointed organizer and inspector of the Ladies' auxiliary lodge of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers

Calvin S. Brice, president of the Lake Erie and Western, announces that the proposed purchase of the Indianapolis, Decatur and Western has been given up

Charles Prowell, of Andrews, a Wabash freight conductor, has received notice of his promotion to the passenger service. He will take a run on the new line, between Chicago and Detroit

There were three sections of Nickel Plate passenger train No 1 this morning Engineer Coogan, with engine 171, and Engineer Murphy, with engine 173, took the second and third sections to Chicago.

Engine No 165 came out of the Stony Island shops Saturday and has been assigned to a run on the third district, in charge of Engineer Braithwait and Fireman Bell The engine has been thoroughly repaired

Mr W. W Willock, of Allegheny, Pa, has been appointed general manager of the Monongahela Connecting railroad to succeed the late Mr W C Quincy. The railroad is an important connecting freight line at Pittsburg

The Big Four railroad is nursing a scheme for insuring passengers against accident while on the company's train The proposed plan is to issue a mileage book at $20 without, or $21 with $3 000 insurance against death and $25 weekly indemnity for accidental disability

Indianapolis Journal The old project of paralleling the Pittsburg, Fort Wayne & Chicago road has been revived, and it is said a number of men of large means are behind the enterprise. The line was surveyed some years ago and several towns voted subsides to it, which have now expired.

The Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers of the Canadian Pacific have an article of agreement in their schedule which requires the company to select all men for the position of master mechanic from locomotive engineers employed upon the road Mr T G Schaughnessy, vice president of the company, is said to have expressed himself very favorable to this part of the agreement.

It is reported from Memphis, Tenn, on good authority that Hetty Green will be a bidder for the Little Rock & Memphis railway, which is to be sold at receiver's sale April 17 It is stated that if Hetty Green is successful in her bid she will extend the road from Little Rock to Greenville, Tex, where it will connect with the Houston & Texas Central railway, opening up a new trunk line from Memphis

A rifle ball went crashing through a smoking car window of a Wabash train last Saturday night, narrowly missing the head of C. F Smith, a Toledo traveling man, who boarded the train at Huntington to come to this city The shot was fired from the banks of a cut, as the ball passed in at one window and out at the opposite one, perhaps a few inches below a level A moment before the shot Mr. Smith had leaned over with his arms on the forward seat to speak to an acquaintance Had it not been for this the ball would have passed through his head. There was no passenger in the opposite seat

The case of Patrick Boler vs the Wabash Railroad company, which was instituted in the Allen circuit court, has been changed to the Wells circuit court and will be tried at Bluffton by Judge Vaughn. In October, 1893, the plaintiff was employed as yard engineer at Andrews. One day, as he alleges, he was pitched head foremost out of his cab window by the drivers dropping down through a defective frog In the fall Boler, who is a large man, had the bones of both wrists broken, disabling him for life He asks $5 000 damages The Messrs. Stuart, of Lafayette, the railway attorneys, were here in connection with the case last Saturday

NOT A BIGGS

But He Might Have Been a Relative or Something or Other.

She sat right opposite a bashful looking young man in a Jefferson avenue car and looked at him so steadily for five minutes that he grew impatient Finally she shifted the market basket, two bundles and stalk of celery to the seat beside her and leaned over and said

"Excuse me, sir, but isn't your name Biggs?"

"No, madam," he said, blushing

"Then you're not a son of Hiram Hartley Biggs of East Saginaw?"

"I am not"

"Not Hiram Biggs' nephew or cousin?"

"No"

"Name isn't even Biggs?" she urged persuasively

"It is not"

"Well, I thought fer sure you was one of 'em I never saw such a family likeness"

The victim smiled that uncertain smile which is played, like trumps, when in doubt, and there was a welcome silence for three blocks Then the owner of the market basket leaned over once more

"It seems to me you favor ole Mrs Biggs more'n you do Hiram," she said

"Ah!"

"Yes She was a Higgins You have her eyes and hair There is a Bigg look though, sure enough," she added reflectively, inspecting the young man still more critically

"Born in East Saginaw, weren't you?" she inquired suddenly.

"No"

"Ever been there?"

"No"

"Well, tain't chance," she declared emphatically, "and if I had three blocks more we'd get to the bottom of this I'm sorry I have to get off here," she added as she gathered up the market basket, the two bundles and the stalk of celery and started for the door

"Too bad, ain't it, to leave it unsettled like that?" she said regretfully to the conductor as she climbed off the car

But the young man didn't think so He looked as if he had shaken a brick off his devoted head, and even the conductor seemed relieved as he started up the car again

"Hold on, conductor," screamed the friend of all the Biggses, dropping the market basket, two bundles and stalk of celery on the track and hurrying after the car.

"It might be on his mother's side," she said breathlessly. "Ask him was his mother a Popham or did"—But the car was gone —Detroit Free Press.

Mrs. C. P Ferry, who formerly lived in this city, is now residing at Decatur, Ind., and a few days ago she observed her eightieth birthday. Her many friends in this city will be interested in the following account of the event taken from the Decatur Democrat: "Mrs. C. P Ferry entertained a company of twelve ladies at her home on Winchester avenue, Saturday afternoon. Mrs Ferry, who enjoyed the distinction of being the oldest resident settler of Fort Wayne until her removal to this place a short time ago, has passed her eightieth birthday, but has lost little of her youthful vivacity and enjoyment of society and retains all of her charming hospitality. Her reminiscences of life and society in Fort Wayne fifty years ago were most interesting and pleasing to her guests At 5 o'clock tea was served Mrs Ferry presided at the urn and Miss Orvis, assisted by Mrs Nachtrieb, dispensed sandwiches, oyster patties, iced fruit and cake Rev. E P. Gregg added cheer to the tea drinking by his genial presence. The ladies present were Mesdames Gregg Nachtrieb, Locke, Moffett, Gast, Hemsley, Champer, Mollen, Misses Studabaker and Orvis, Mrs Williams, of Delta, Ohio, and Mrs. Alverson, of Spencer, Ind"

Saturday evening, Fred M Grummon, of No. 189 East Jefferson street, was very pleasantly surprised by a number of his associates, in honor of his twenty-fourth birthday. The evening was passed with music and various games, and at 11.30 an elegant luncheon was served. The amusements were arrested long enough for Mr. Charles Rosenthal to present the host with an elegant rocking chair, in behalf of his friends, and a beautiful pastel painting of his pet dog, from his father and mother. Numerous other presents were also received. Mr. Grummon acknowledged the gifts in a few appropriate remarks, admitting the surprise to be complete Those present were: Misses Myrtle Titus, Maude Platt, Nina Strock Anna Vann, Cora Saynor, Grace Titus, Nora Pence Pennville, Ind; Cora Poulson, and Mesdames C B Strother, of Laity, Ohio, H Guthrie, of Huntington Ind, and C H. Platt and Messrs Charles Rosenthall George McCurdy, O to Meyer, Ad Lamar George Barbier, Rafe Strock and Fred M Grummon

ONE A DAY.

This is the Motto of the Arcade Music Store.

We have sold so far this month one instrument a day and by keeping this up it will enable us to give wholesale prices We are expecting a large stock of new pianos soon and are making special efforts to clean out all of our second hand square and slightly used uprights at prices that will surprise you.

Think of a good square piano, carved legs, seven and one-third octave $35 00.

One good upright piano, sold for $237 50, in use but seven months. We were obliged to take it back on account of loss of position during the great railroad strike—$45.00 paid on it—only $150 00.

VENO COMPELLED TO REMAIN.

Saengerbund Hall Crowded to the Doors Last Night.

The Needy of the City Bring Notes From Priests and Clergymen — A Bountiful Supply of Provisions Given to All—Hundreds of Patients Unable to Receive Treatment the Past Week —Veno and Staff to Remain for a Few Days Longer.

SAENGERbund Hall was crowded to the doors last night, and the large audience present were treated to one of the best lectures ever delivered in this city. At the close of the lecture Veno requested all the poor and needy to come forward, and distributed a large quantity of groceries and provisions to those who had letters from their clergymen.

Veno gave these benefit lectures during the winter in Pittsburg and Indianapolis, and was instrumental in relieving much suffering thereby.

More cures are being reported every day Mrs Brinsley, of 264 West Washington street came to Veno's office on Saturday. She has been afflicted with rheumatism for some time and compelled to use a cane. After the first application of the Electric Fluid she was able to walk without her crutch

Veno's Curative Syrup, 50c a bottle is a positive cure for weak stomach, dyspepsia, liver, kidney, blood and urinary troubles, sleeplessness, poor appetite and general weakness, and when used with Veno's Electric Fluid, 50c. a bottle, will certainly cure the worst and most desperate forms of rheumatism, paralysis, spinal troubles, sciatia, neuralgia, stiff joints, weak muscles, numbness, and all aches and pains. Veno's Lung Tonic, 50c. a bottle, is a specific for throat and lung trouble, asthma, bronchitis, hoarseness, coughs, colds, &c. Veno Concentrated Tonic and Nervine, $3 a bottle, is a specific for nervous prostration, St Vitus dance, and all extreme nervous cases. It is a first class brain and nerve food. Veno's Vito, $2 a bottle, is a positive cure for weakness of men. Veno has other specifics for deafness, catarrh, fits, piles, dizziness, delicate ailments of women, such as displacement of the womb, female weakness, &c., also private diseases of men.

The Veno remedies sold by all druggists (The Meyer Bros Drug Co, wholesale distributing agents) and at Veno's office, Saengerbund hall, where Veno and Staff can be consulted from 9 a m to 5:30 p m. Advice and consultation free to all.

Didn't Like It.

"Danbs is as mad as hops about his picture that was on exhibition."
"Wasn't it noticed?"
"Yes, took a prize"
"What's he mad about then?"
"Well, it was a picture of cows, and it was awarded the prize for the best picture of sheep."—Tit-Bits

The Usual Difference.

Lady—I see you advertise "good" butter, "fine" butter, "extra" butter, "best" butter and "gilt edged" butter What is the difference?

New Boy (not very well trained)—Th' "gilt edged" butter is fit to eat. The rest isn't.—Good News.

Getting It Mixed.

"When I came down here because I couldn't stand the climate up north," said the North Dakota man who was shivering in a Georgia winter resort, "I seem to have jumped out of the frying pan into the—or—into the icebox."—Chicago Tribune.

So Feminine.

He—Do you think blonds have more admirers than brunettes?

She—I don't know. Why not ask some of the girls who have had experience in both capacities?—Temps.

IS NOW A LAW.

The Nicholson Bill Signed by the Governor.

He Puts His Signature to It at 3:10 This Afternoon—Legislative Proceedings.

INDIANAPOLIS, March 11.—In the senate this morning Mr. Parker, the democratic leader, created a sensation by denouncing Hoke Smith as an enemy to democratic principles and said that he had done more to further the interests of the republican party than any other man.

Lieutenant Governor Nye announced this morning that no bill could pass the senate today, on account of the expiration of the time limit for such business.

The house passed the Fort Wayne Charter bill and a bill requiring township trustees to keep a record of the indigent persons helped out of the township fund.

Governor Matthews has signed the bill for the government of benevolent institutions.

At noon the following important bills were in Governor Matthews' hands awaiting his signature:

Fee and salary bill.
Nicholson bill.
Indiana Charter amendments.
Evansville Charter.
Fort Wayne Charter.
Ousting Tim Griffin.
General appropriation.

It is generally understood that the governor has signed the Nicholson bill.

It is reported that there was a tilt between Governor Matthews and Lieutenant Governor Nye over the failure of the senate to pass the Ruby bill.

The governor signed the Nicholson bill at 3:10 this afternoon, and it is now a law.

FULL TEXT OF THE NICHOLSON BILL.

The full text of the Nicholson bill, with all its amendments, as it left both houses of the legislature and went to the governor for his signature, is as follows:

An act to better regulate and restrict the sale of intoxicating, spirituous, vinous and malt liquors and providing penalties for violation of the same.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Indiana that hereafter all persons applying for license before the board of county commissioners, under the existing law of the state of Indiana, to sell spirituous vinous, malt or other intoxicating liquors shall in such application specifically describe the room in which he desires to sell such liquors, and the exact location of the same, and if there is more than one room in the building in which such liquors are intended to be sold said applicant shall specifically describe and locate the room in which he desires to sell such liquors in such building.

Provided that no license shall be granted to any other than a male person over the age of twenty-one years, and one who shall at the time be of good moral character, and provided further that no such person shall be deemed of good moral character if within two years of the time when such application is made he shall have been adjudged guilty the second time of violating any of the provisions of this act.

Sec. 2. All persons holding license issued under the law of the state of Indiana authorizing the sale of spirituous, vinous, malt or other intoxicating liquors in less quantities than a quart at a time shall provide for the sale of such liquors in a room separate from any other business of any kind and no devices for amusement or music of any kind or character, or partitions of any kind shall be permitted in such room. And, provided, further, that if such applicant for license desires to carry on any other or different business he shall state the same in his application for license and the same may be granted or refused by the board of commissioners hearing such application and such permission shall be stated in the license, if granted.

Sec 3. Any room where spirituous, vinous, malt or other intoxicating liquors are sold by virtue of a license under the law of the state of Indiana shall be so arranged that the same shall be securely closed and locked and admission thereto prevented and all persons excluded therefrom upon all days and hours upon which the sale of such liquors are prohibited by law. It is hereby made unlawful for the proprietor of such a place and the business herein contemplated of selling intoxicating liquors to permit any person or persons other than himself and family to go into such room and place where intoxicating liquors are sold upon such days and hours when the sale of such liquors is prohibited by law. The fact that any person or persons are permitted to be in or go in or out of such room upon any day or hour when the sales of such liquors are prohibited by law shall be prima facie evidence of guilt upon the trial of a cause charging the proprietor of such room with violating the law in the sale of such liquors upon such days or hours.

Sec. 4. Any room where intoxicating liquors are sold by a virtue of a license issued under the laws of the state of Indiana for the sale of spirituous, vinous, malt or other intoxicating liquors in less quantities than a quart at a time, with permission to drink the same upon the premises, shall be situated upon the ground floor or basement of the building where the same are sold and in a room fronting the street or highway upon which said building is situated, and said room shall be so arranged, either with window or glass door, as that the whole of said room may be in view of the street or highway, and no blinds, screens or obstructions to the view shall be arranged, erected or placed so as to prevent the entire view of said room from the street or highway upon which the same is situated, during such days and hours when the sale of such liquors are prohibited by law. Upon conviction for the violation of this or either of the foregoing sections of this act the defendant shall be fined in any sum not less than $10 or more than $100, to which may be added imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding ninety days, and, in case of conviction for the second offense, either upon a plea of guilty or conviction upon trial thereof, in any circuit superior, criminal justice or police court of Indiana, as a part of the judgment the court may make an order revoking the license of the person convicted, which said judgment shall have the effect to completely annul and set aside such license and all privileges and rights under the same. And upon the third conviction or plea of guilty entered the court rendering judgment thereon shall annul and set aside such license and all privileges and rights under the same.

Sec. 5. Any person engaged in the sale of spirituous, vinous, malt or any other intoxicating liquors to be drunk as a beverage, who shall allow, suffer or permit any person under the age of twenty-one years to loiter in the saloon or place of business where said person is engaged in the sale of spirituous liquors as aforesaid, shall, upon conviction thereof, be fined in any sum not less than $10 nor more than $100, to which imprisonment in the county jail may be added, not exceeding ninety days.

Sec 6. Whoever, directly or indirectly, sells or delivers any spirituous vinous, malt or other intoxicating liquors to any person under the age of twenty one years, either for his own use or for the use of any other person whomsoever, shall be fined in any sum not more than $100 nor less than $20 to which may be added imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding ninety days.

Sec 7. It is hereby made the duty of all peace officers, to wit: Town and city marshals, policemen, sheriffs and constables, residing in the township town or city in which any saloon may be hereafter located, to enforce the provisions of this act.

Sec 8. No more than one license shall be granted or issued to any one person, and in no case to any person other than the actual owner and proprietor of said business, who must apply in his own name and be a continuous resident of the township in which the application for license is made at least ninety days' time prior to the time of application and no license shall be granted or issued to any person who in his application for the same, is acting as the agent for another, or who proposes to conduct said business as the agent or partner of another person. Provided that in case of the insanity or death of the person holding a license under the provisions of the law now in force, before the expiration of the year for which the same was granted, the county or city treasurer shall, on the order of the board of the commissioners of the county or council of such city refund to the guardian of such insane person, the heirs, executors or administrators of said decedent or insane person, the proportionate part of the license fees for the unexpired part of said year, which such treasurer has received for such license.

Sec. 9. If, three days before any regular session of the board of commissioners of any county, a remonstrance in writing, signed by a majority of the legal voters of any township or ward in any city situated in said county, shall be filed with the auditor of the county against the granting of a license to any applicant for the sale of spirituous, vinous, malt or other intoxicating liquors under the law of the state of Indiana with the privilege of allowing the same to be drunk on the premises where sold, within the limits of said township or city ward, it shall be unlawful thereafter for such board of commissioners to grant such license to such applicant therefor during the period of two years from the date of the filing of such remonstrance. If any such license should be granted by said board during said period, the same shall be null and void and the holder thereof shall be liable for any sales of liquor made by him, the same as if such sale were made without license. The number to constitute a majority of voters herein referred to shall be determined by the aggregate vote cast in said township, or city ward, for candidates for the highest office at the last election preceding the filing of such remonstrance.

Sec. 9½. It shall be unlawful for any spirituous, vinous or malt liquors to be sold or given away in any drug store in any quantity less than a quart at a time, except upon written prescription of a reputable practicing physician. Any person violating any of the provisions of this section shall be fined for the first offense the sum of $25, and for the second offense in any sum not less than $25 nor more than $200 to which may be added imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding six months.

Sect. 10. All the provisions of this act shall apply to persons, places and sales of spirituous, vinous, malt and other intoxicating liquors, whether conducted under the law of the state of Indiana, licensing regulating and restricting the sale of such liquors to be used as a beverage, or by virtue of any laws of the United States, except as to the provisions for obtaining, revoking and remonstrating against license which apply only to proceedings under the laws of the state of Indiana.

Provided that this section shall not apply to persons who hold a prescription from a reputable physician for any drugs or medicines, or to any person selling the same."

EX-PRESIDENT HARRISON.

His Condition is Much Improved Today.

INDIANAPOLIS, March 11.—The condition of ex-President Harrison is most satisfactory today. He has gained much strength and was able to appear at the breakfast table with his family. Dr. Jameson, General Harrison's physician, says that his patient is now out of danger and he apprehends no serious developments in his pleurodynia trouble. Dr. Jameson thinks that Mr. Harrison will soon be able to resume his business.

Lord Rosebery.

LONDON, March 11.—Lord Rosebery has almost entirely recovered from the attack of influenza which has confined him to his house for nearly two weeks. He went to Windsor today in order to have an audience of the queen. Her majesty starts for Nice on Wednesday next.

Railroads in India.

The British government in India has borrowed and used for railway purposes a total of $500,000,000. The railway receipts, which have doubled in the past ten years, now amount to about $100,000,000 annually.

DASTARDLY DEED.

Attempt to Wreck a Nickel Plate Train at Valparaiso.

Ties Piled Upon the Tracks at an Isolated Point on the Line—The Scheme Failed.

VALPARAISO, Ind., March 11.—Some unknown persons made an attempt Saturday night to wreck the express train, east bound, on the Nickel Plate road, just west of Valparaiso. They had placed ties with one end under the rail and the other projecting over the opposite rail, then piled ties behind them. The engineer could not stop his train before striking the obstruction and knocked part of them off, dragging the others about two hundred yards. The engine had to be raised before the ties could be removed. The passengers were all thrown from their seats, but no one was seriously injured. It is supposed to have been the work of train robbers. This point is the most isolated place along the road between here and Hobart and in a deep cut. Attempts have been made to wreck trains on the Chicago and Grand Trunk road just south of here.

MORMONS HAVE IT NOW.

Salt Lake City Rejoicing Over the Arrival of Natural Gas.

SALT LAKE, Utah, March 11.—This city is rejoicing over the final arrival of natural gas which has been piped from the wells fourteen miles distant. The completion of the first connection was celebrated by the illuminating of the main streets with flambeaux turned on at high pressure from the mains at the Temple block. The supply is brought to the city by an English company and will be connected with the mains of the local gas company which has contracted to supply a number of large local manufacturers and city consumers at a price low enough to displace coal as a fuel. The wells already improved have an aggregate output of 20,000,000 feet per day. The supply already available is ample for the entire demand of the city for domestic light and heat with a good surplus for manufacturing purposes. A formal celebration of the new enterprise is to be in a few days under the auspices of the Salt Lake chamber of commerce.

KILLED A WHALE.

A Big Old Settler Hauled in by Fishermen.

BOSTON, March 11.—A whale about seventy-five feet in length and evidently an old settler, was killed off Nahant last night by a picked crew of experienced men from Nahant. The whale had been reported by several parties during the last few weeks and Friday night the fishermen who were out in their boats were forced to make a hurried retreat to the shore in order to escape undue familiarity on the part of his whaleship. The whale is evidently an old one, as he is half covered with sea weed. Deeply imbedded in his back was an ancient harpoon, badly rusted, but with the inscription "Hiram K. Swain, Nantuck, 1856," still legible. The Nahant whalers are in high glee as there has been considerable rivalry between them and their Swampscott brothers over the prospective capture of the monster.

BIG TELESCOPE.

The Lens for the Instrument at Washington University.

GREENVILLE, Pa., March 11.—Greenville is to furnish the lens for the largest telescope that has ever been constructed. Rev. John Peate, D. D., a Methodist minister of seventy-four years, has assumed the task. He has just completed arrangements for handling the rough glass that is to be transformed into this great lens at his home in Greenville, and will probably begin work in a few days. This lens is to be used in a telescope for the Methodist university at Washington. It is to be a monument to Rev. Dr. John Peate, much more significant than any costly column that might be erected to the memory of the grand old gentleman. A plate glass works at Butler took the glass for the lens. Heretofore all telescope glasses of any importance have been cast in France, as well as being polished in that country. The lens, when it is completed, is to be sixty-two inches in diameter and seven inches thick.

True to Its Name.

Nearly twenty years ago one of the most eminent physicians in Indiana was noted for the wonderful success that he achieved in all diseases of the stomach. The remedy was so ready and perfect in its efficacy, that large as his practice was it was deemed proper to put this remedy in such shape that humanity at large could have the benefit of it. This remedy is Lyon's Seven Wonders, which is performing marvelous cures in indigestion, dyspepsia, catarrh of the stomach, and other serious ailments caused by functional disturbances of the stomach. The certificates of cures performed by Lyon's Seven Wonders bear the indorsement of the best people in the land, of those who are well known in the communities in which they live. Among these may be mentioned Gen. R. S. Foster, of Indianapolis; Hon. A. M. Sweeney, ex-clerk of the supreme court of Indiana, and Judge Wargle, of Tipton.

Many Armenians Killed.

LONDON, March 11.—According to a dispatch from Constantinople, published in the Standard this morning, unconfirmed rumors were current of fresh disorder at Karahisar, in the valley of Sivas, Asiatic Turkey. Additional advices from the same source say that many Armenians have been killed and wounded at Karahisar.

OPENING THE CAMPAIGN.

How a Battle Was Fought Beneath the Apple Blossoms.

It was a spring morning, with the mellowest of suns and the balmiest of breezes, as the drums suddenly beat the long roll and the cavalry bugles took up and seconded the signal. A camp of 10,000 men—infantry, cavalry and artillery—was about to break up and move after the enforced idleness of winter. There is rushing to and fro, there is packing of knapsacks and drawing of rations, there is a shout and song and laughter as the word flies about that the enemy is only a few miles away, and we are going to open the campaign by striking him a hard blow. Yesterday the fruit trees on the farms about us had a faint tinge of pink and white. Today they have come out in full bloom, and it is a sight to soften a soldier's heart to behold them clothed in robes of peace and purity. Every breath of wind brings the odor of the blossoms to our nostrils, and it is something to take us back home to the old apple tree growing beside the well curb at the kitchen door.

In an hour the cavalry is on the march, and before the last of the infantry has left camp the booming of fieldpieces down the road signifies the enemy has been found. He has taken up a position on a forest crowned ridge, with a creek meandering along its front. At the first gun from him our battery wheeled, to the left, rushed for the high ground covered by a farmhouse orchard, and as we unlimbered and began firing long fuse shells I discovered that the limbs of a grand old apple tree spread out over our heads until every man was sheltered. How pure and delicate those blossoms looked! How refreshing the odor exhaled! The powder smoke blew back among them, but they seemed to shake it off, and though our faces were soon begrimed the odor of those white blossoms was still in our nostrils.

Like the soft, lazy snowflakes of an April day the blossoms came floating down among us, detached from the limbs by the concussion. I even brushed them off the gun as I sighted it to send a shell with murderous intent. Some one said the enemy was advancing. I brushed the falling blossoms right and left to enable me to see. Some one said that one of our men had been killed just behind me. The blossoms pelted my cheek as I turned to look.

Well, it was over in half an hour, with less than 100 killed and wounded. We sponged out our guns, limbered up, and then I turned to the poor fellow who would never answer roll call again. He had already been buried. The ground about us was as white as if snow had fallen, and ten feet away lay our dead comrade, shrouded in the white apple blossoms, buried under the beautiful and delicate petals which the crash of war had shaken down! Wasn't it a glorious shroud and a peaceful grave for a warrior? A bullet fired by a sharpshooter who had crept up a ravine had entered his heart, and he had fallen on his back and lay with eyes open wide and the blood welling out of his death wound. And the blossoms had hidden his eyes with their awful stare, had veiled his face until we could not see its pallor, had fallen so thickly upon his broad breast that there was no trace of the bullet and its work.

It was the soft, tender hands of nature seeking for the moment to hide the murderous work of war, to soften the hearts of men armed with every device to slay their fellow men. And the soft breeze carried the smoke away behind the farmhouse to be lost over the meadows, and in its place came again the odor of blossoms and the songs of red breasted robins. Blossoms fell upon the dead as they were laid in the shallow trenches to sleep forevermore, and above them the robins called to each other and returned to their deserted nests. M. QUAD.

The Salmon's High Jump.

A few years ago I had occasion to say something about the leaping powers of the Atlantic salmon, and what I said was criticised by a well known angling authority. I mentioned that it was reported that salmon in Norwegian rivers had jumped up and over an obstruction 16 feet high. My friend and critic contended that salmon could not jump to exceed six feet. I then brought forward evidence from a number of anglers, fishing inspectors, fish commissioners, etc., in this country and in Europe to show that salmon had made leaps ranging from 10 to 16 feet, and still my critic was not convinced. Under date of Oct. 3, 1891, Professor A. Landmark, inspector of fresh water fisheries for Norway, writes me from Christiania about his experiments in marking salmon and sea trout for the purpose of observing their migrations, and he has this to say about the leap of the salmon:

Concerning the height that salmon can jump under favorable circumstances there is in one place in Norway undeniable evidence that salmon sometimes have made a perfectly clear jump of 16 feet, perpendicular height. No doubt a jump of the said height is quite unusual, but, having myself examined the spot where the occurrence had taken place and heard the evidence of persons who have themselves witnessed it, I cannot doubt the fact.—Forest and Stream.

Well Known English Regiments.

The origin of the famous Forty-second, or Black Watch, is familiar to many. After the rebellion of 1715 the government, with the view of bringing the highlanders more into touch with the rest of the people, caused six companies of them to be raised. The command of each company was given to the chief of a clan. Their duties at first were not strictly military, but more those of an armed police, disarming the highlanders and preventing depredations on the lowlands. They executed these duties so much to the satisfaction of the government that in 1739 the companies were formed into one regiment and enrolled in the line.

The name "Black Watch," by which this distinguished regiment has ever since been known, arose from the dark color of their uniform tartan. How the regiment would have behaved during the rebellion of 1745 it is difficult to conjecture, but fortunately it was abroad at the time.

Most of the other highland regiments were raised in 1793 and the following year. Two well known Irish regiments were also raised at this time—the Eighty-seventh (Royal Irish fusiliers) and the Eighty-eighth (Connaught rangers). The rangers, from their plundering propensities in the peninsula, were styled by General Picton "the greatest blackguards in the army."—Chambers' Journal.

A Natural Request.

A capital instance of child's logic is sent us by a correspondent: "In a letter just received from my son in New South Wales," she writes, "he mentions overhearing the following on board a steamer from Sydney to Melbourne. A very seasick little 4-year-old girl said to her mother, 'Oh, mamma, please do let the ship walk!'"—London Globe.

MERRIDETH

Hon. Levi Merrideth, of Van Wert, Ohio, died on Saturday. He was a prominent and wealthy man, and well known in Fort Wayne. He was a member of the order of Knight Templars and that order will have charge of the funeral tomorrow. Dr. C. B. Stemen, at the request of the deceased long before his demise, will officiate as chaplain.

GOD'S WORK AMONG MEN

Pres. Zollars, of Hiram College, Preaches a Strong Sermon.

Rev. Patterson Discourses at the Presbyterian Church—Dr. G. N. Eldridge at City Y. M. C. A.

Rev. E. V. Zollars, the president of Hiram college, in Ohio, was in the city yesterday and preached both in the morning and evening in the Church of Christ to large audiences. He is one of the most prominent educators of the country and has done much since his connection with Hiram college to bring that institution to the front. His sermon in the evening showed his strong ability as a pulpit orator. It was forcible, argumentative, interesting and full of thought, while his style of delivery was such as to hold the audience attentive listeners.

He chose as his text the first verse of the first chapter of Acts and his sermon was intended to show how God chose human agency for the accomplishment of His work among men. This was the divine plan for the salvation of the race and He had followed it since the creation. His direct messages to man were not written in the heavens. They were given to man and by them told and written to the race. It was Moses, Abraham and the prophets who were selected as God's ambassadors for the word thus given us in the Old Testament and the apostles in the New Testament. Since then the great truths of the Bible have been given to the world through such men as Martin Luther, John Calvin, James Arminius and John Wesley.

Before Luther's time the Bible was practically a sealed book, the property only of the priests. Luther made it an open book and gave it to the people. Calvin revealed a new truth, the sovereignty of God, Arminius, religious freedom and Wesley, spirituality. All these reforms were the work of God through the human agency which He chose especially for it. Today men are carrying the gospel to the world and preaching it to all the nations. We each have our part in this great divine plan. Some have money to give, some time and talents and consecrated work, but God expects each one to do his part and do it up to his best abilities and to continue to do it until we are called to our last rewards.

The speaker touched upon other interesting points. He believed that "doing" came before "teaching." Men ought to be correct in their lives before they began teaching—if not, their teaching will amount to but little. There is happiness in the doing of good acts. They lift us up and bring us nearer to God. This was Christ's history on earth. He went about doing good—both to do and to teach—first doing and then teaching. His work was but begun when he stood on Calvary. It has been going on ever since. So with the work that each man does. It is never finished. It is but begun when he comes to the grave. It will go on in its influence forever.

While in the city Rev. Zollars was the guest of his cousin, Judge Allen Zollars, and in his meeting with our citizens he did all that he could to further the interests of Hiram college, which he represents, and in this he is ably assisted by Rev. P. J. Rice, the pastor of the Church of Christ, and a graduate of the college.

REV. PATTERSON'S SERMON.

Rev. Alexander Patterson closed the second week of his evangelical meetings in this city last night at the Westminster Presbyterian church and tonight he will preach at the First Presbyterian church, where the services will be held this week, preaching every night, except Saturday, and closing with the union meeting of the three Presbyterian churches next Sunday night.

At the morning service yesterday his sermon was preached from the text: "What shall I do, then, with Jesus?" The question, he said, was the one asked by Pilate over eighteen hundred years ago when Christ stood before him. He had heard the charges against Him, and then, turning to the multitude, who hated Jesus and who were clamoring for His crucifixion, he asked: "What shall I do with Jesus?" And the crowd of Christ's enemies replied: "Let Him be crucified."

The scene, the speaker continued, is a representative one and it is being enacted today a million times over and over. In Pilate's place stands the human soul and the question comes to it with the same force that it did to Pilate, "What shall I do with Jesus?" Will they listen, as Pilate did, to the multitude and allow Christ to be driven from their hearts? Will they crucify Him and refuse to allow Him to save them from their sins?

Rev. Patterson discussed his theme at length showing many of the reasons urged by the unconverted for rejecting Christ. Doubts in regard to creeds and disputed theological questions, he said, ought not to be presented as reasons for the sinner refusing salvation. It is not a question of form of baptism or whether they believe in endless punishment or not, but simply, will they accept Christ as their Savior? There is no other way to salvation than through Christ. This the Bible teaches. It is the fundamental principle of Christianity. There can be no doubting of this doctrine. It must be believed.

He discoursed upon the danger of delay in the deciding of this question. Christ is knocking at the heart of the sinner now. He seeks admittance now and if He is refused the sinner may drive Him away forever. He closed with an earnest appeal to the unconverted to decide the question of their soul's salvation at once and accept Christ as their Savior.

In the evening Rev. Patterson preached to a large audience, it being a union meeting of the three Presbyterian congregations.

DR. ELDRIDGE AT THE Y. M. C. A.

Dr. G. N. Eldridge, the pastor of the Wayne street M. E. church, spoke to a large audience at the City Y. M. C. A., using as his theme the words of Christ: "Come and See," in reply to the question, "Where Dwellest Thou?" asked Him by two of His disciples. It was a strong, earnest and interesting discourse. The beauty and power of the Christian religion, he said, can never be known or realized by those who have not put their faith and hope in Christ. Just as the beauty of famous paintings or the grandeur of the Rocky Mountains cannot be correctly conveyed by description, so the testimony of Christians cannot give to those outside of Christ a full conception of the peace and happiness and power that their is in religion. We must see these paintings, we must see the Rockies, in order to form a correct idea of their beauty and grandeur. So we must have Christ in our heart, we must have accepted Him as our Savior, if we would know the joy that there is in religion. The speaker illustrated the thought that he presented in a forcible manner, and closed with an earnest plea to the unconverted to put their trust in Christ. The Haydn quartet sung two pieces and the afternoon exercises were most interesting indeed.

THEY WERE UNMOUNTED

Clever Ruse Adopted by Two Fort Wayne Officers.

They Secure Entrance Into a Clinton Street Saloon—Mike Coller Arrested—Other Police Notes.

Yesterday afternoon, about 3 o'clock, Lieutenant Henry Lapp and Officer Dora Hardendorf suspecting that liquor was being sold at the Clinton street saloon of William Heinze, Esquire, determined to investigate. They therefore quietly sauntered up to the back door of William's place and gave two light taps upon the panel. They counted six and then gave another rap. In a moment or two the outer door opened as if by magic and the two officers stepped into the lobby. They next approached an inner door and were accosted by a voice within which inquired:

"Mounted?"

Lieutenant Lapp was shaking with laughter, but put his hand up to his mouth so as to disguise his voice, and answered the challenge with:

"Mounted!"

At this the door was quickly opened but if a bomb shell had exploded amongst the crowd within they could not have been more surprised. The door had been opened by Heinze's bar tender but so quickly did the crowd within scatter that the officers only caught sight of the coattail of the last man as he shot through the door. No arrests were made although the evidences of drinking were everywhere at hand.

MISREPRESENTED THINGS

Saturday night late three young men, George Ryan, John Eckert, jr., and Fred Warren, were arrested on Chestnut street for fast driving by Officers Sharp, Aiken, Dasler and Paul. The young men were locked up for the night. Not long afterward the parents of young Eckert were awakened by two young men who informed them of the trouble which had befallen their son. The young men said they had made up $11 between them to pay the fine of Eckert, and lacked just $1 of having enough. This amount they were given with the understanding that it was to be spent in bailing John out of the station. The young fellows never intended to do this but the moment they got the money went down town and spent it. The police arrested one of the fellows who gave his name as Mike Coller. He waved examination before Mayor Oakley this morning and was bound over in the sum of $100. He went to jail.

MULDOON FINED.

At 5 o'clock yesterday morning Sergeant Dasler received a telephone message to come to the rear door of the postoffice. The officer went over and found the night watchman parleying with a half drunken man. The fellow had pushed himself into the building and refused to leave. He was arrested and taken to the police station and a charge of drunkenness and trespassing registered against him. He gave his name as Owen Muldoon and was this morning fined $1 and costs for being drunk.

John Eckert, George Ryan and Fred Warren were each fined $1 and cost for fast driving. They paid.

Sunday afternoon Lieutenant Lapp and Officers Foulks and Hardendorf gained an entrance to the Lassus saloon on the north side and arrested William Clear, the bartender, on a charge of selling liquor on the Sabbath. He was released on bail and this morning took a change of venue to 'Squire Huser's court.

Convicted of Manslaughter.

CHEYENNE, Wyo., March 11.—Charles Boulter, a retired cattle man, tried for the murder of Thomas O'Neill, has been convicted of manslaughter, the jury having been out forty eight hours. Boulter has killed three men in the last ten years but has heretofore escaped punishment.

WILLIAM H. DAVIS.

Demise of a Well Known Fort Wayne Citizen.

Death of Mrs. Rebecca Strass, Wife of the Late Rabbi Strass—Other Deaths and Funerals.

At about 8 o'clock last evening, at his home on West Creighton avenue, occurred the death of William H. Davis, the well-known bookbinder. The deceased has been ill for the past three or four weeks. For some days he was alarmingly ill but lately has been considerably better. Yesterday his condition was very favorable and towards evening he sat up in bed and ate his supper. Shortly afterward he was stricken with an attack of paralysis of the heart and rapidly sank until death came on. The primary cause of death was Brights disease of the kidneys, from which he has been a sufferer for some time. William H. Davis was highly respected in Fort Wayne, where he has been in active business for almost a quarter of a century. He was born in Canada about fifty-five years ago. The deceased was a member of Sol D. Bayless lodge F. & A. M.; National Union, and Anthony Wayne post, G. A. R. In the National Union he carried $5,000 insurance. Mr. Davis leaves six children, the oldest of whom is about eighteen. He leaves three brothers, one of whom Charles, lives in this city. One brother lives in California and one in Toledo.

Mr. Davis' war record was of a high order. He enlisted in the service November 1, 1861, as a private in Company H. Forty-third New York Volunteer Infantry, and was discharged in March, 1863 on account of a gun shot wound in the knee cap. He joined the Anthony Wayne Post, G. A. R., in 1883 and has held important offices ever since, being quartermaster at the time of his death. No one stood higher in the post than Mr Davis. He was also a member of the Scottish Rite Masons, which order will have charge of the funeral, to take place Wednesday afternoon.

MERZ

Joseph Merz, an aged and well known German pioneer citizen, died at his home, No 25 Pine street, last evening after an illness of stomach trouble. The deceased was born in Konhr Hessen, Germany, March 22, 1822. He came to America in 1848 and settled first in Buffalo, where he remained six years, coming to this city in 1854. He followed the occupation of a carpenter and from 1859 to 1878 was employed by the Pennsylvania company as a car builder, when he retired and has not been actively engaged at any kind of work. He leaves a family of six grown children, all of whom reside in Fort Wayne. They are: Nicholas, Thedore, Albert, Louis, Mrs. Amos Heit and Mrs. Joseph Ankenbrook. The wife of the deceased died three years ago. Mr. Merz was a member of the St. Paul's Catholic church and the funeral will be held from that church tomorrow morning at 9:30 o'clock, the services at the house being a half hour earlier. Father Miller will officiate.

DEATH OF MRS. REBECCA STRASS

Yesterday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock occurred the death of Mrs. Rebecca Strass, widow of the late Rabbi Samuel Strass, at her home No 50 West Lewis street, of old age and paralysis. The deceased had been in her usual health until last Tuesday when she was stricken with paralysis from which, in spite of the best medical aid, she was unable to recover and died after six days of suffering. She was eighty-one years, five months and seven days old, and was well-known and beloved by a large circle of friends in this city and elsewhere. Mrs. Strass was born in Austria, where she was married about fifty-nine years ago to Rabbi Strass. They came to this country in 1873 and settled in Fort Wayne, and for some years Mr. Strass was the rabbi of the Jewish church here. They then moved to Ligonier, where for eleven years Mr. Strass served as rabbi, and returned to this city to reside seven years ago. Here with his wife he remained until his death one year ago. The surviving children of the deceased are: Emanuel Strass and Isaac Strass of this city; Lewis Strass, of Minneapolis; Mrs. D. S. Reidelsheimer and Mrs. Morris Strass, of Monroeville; Mrs. Katie Schloss, of Ligonier; Mrs. Mary Kahn and Miss Julia Strass, of this city. The funeral will take place tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock from the residence, 50 Lewis street. Rabbi Hirschberg, of Achduth Vesholom Temple, officiating. The family requests THE SENTINEL to say that there will be no flowers at the funeral. The interment will be at the Jewish cemetery. The following relatives from out of the city are here to attend the funeral: Mr. and Mrs Maurice Strass and family, and Mr. and Mrs D. S. Redelsheimer, of Monroeville, Ind.; Mr and Mrs. L. Schloss, of Ligonier, Ind.; Mr. J. L. Strass, of Minneapolis, Minn.; Mr. and Mrs. Herman Sheyer, of Reading, Mich.; Mrs. Carrie Studecker, Wabash, Ind.

BAADE.

Walter, the infant child of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Baade, died Saturday night of bronchitis after a short illness at the residence, 69 Hugh street. The funeral will be held Tuesday at 1:30 from the residence. Rev. A. G. Sauer will officiate.

M'LALLEN.

Yesterday, at Columbia City, E. L. McLallen, a well-known banker and prominent citizen, dropped dead of heart disease. He was a prominent Mason and well known in this city. William Geake, of Fort Wayne, went over hurriedly this morning by freight train.

DEHART

Mrs. Lottie Dehart, nee Lottie Bolman, of this city, died at her home in Bloomville, Ohio, on Saturday. The remains arrived in this city last evening at 8:15 via the Wabash and the funeral will take place tomorrow afternoon from the residence of Mrs. Bolman at 147 Union street.

VISITOR FROM AFAR.

Interesting Gossip Concerning Ceylon and the Tea Trade.

Vincent E. Tissera Formerly in Charge of the Ceylonese Exhibit at the World's Fair, Visits Fort Wayne.

For the past day or so Fort Wayne has had for a visitor a gentleman from an exceedingly distant land, Mr. Vincent E. Tissera, of Columbo, Island of Ceylon. Formerly in the employe of the local government Mr. Tissera was chosen as one of the men to accompany and managed the Ceylon exhibit at the World's fair.

The visitor was seen at the Randall hotel this morning and chatted pleasantly to a SENTINEL reporter. He said: "The Ceylon exhibit at the fair, which was so much admired, was in charge of fifty-three of my fellow countrymen. The expenses of the exhibit were borne half by the government and half by the people. Out of the fifty-three who came here all but three of us returned to our native country. This climate is exceedingly trying on anyone who has lived in an island of perpetual summer."

Mr. Tissera is vice president of the Ceylon Importing Tea company, a concern which he organized after the fair, establishing headquarters at Davenport, Iowa, and New York. In the interests of this firm he is now traveling and introducing the Ceylon tea. Speaking of this product he said: "The growing of tea with Ceylon is a comparitively new thing, begun, in fact, about the year 1873. Previous to this our staple was coffee but an insect killed all our plants and we then began raising Peruvian, bark, or quinine. This we over did and flooded the market until there was no profit. Then we tried the cultivation of tea, which is now our staple crop. In 1873 the first shipment of twenty-three pounds of tea was made to England. By 1883 the trade had grown to 1,065,000 pounds and in 1893 we exported the enormous quantity of 80,000,000 pounds.

"The growing of tea is an interesting process. The plants are first started in a hot house from seed. After two months time, and when the plant is about six inches in height, they are replanted about four feet apart. This plant is allowed to grow for fifteen months before the first picking is done. The shrub is then pruned down to about one foot in height and allowed to grow to the heighth of two feet, at which height it is constantly kept. When a tea estate is thoroughly established the crop is gathered every ten days the year round. The average life of a Ceylon plant is twenty-five or thirty years. The work of gathering the crops is done by native labor, imported from the south of India. The tea pickers get ten cents per day, but I assure you that they save fifty per cent. of their wages. They spend three cents per day for rice, one cent for vegetables, and one cent for fish. This is a plentiful supply for an adult for one day. Two small pieces of clothing last a year, so you see they are not so bad off after all. These natives only stay in Ceylon until they have saved $20 or $25, when they go back to India, buy a piece of land and live comfortable all the rest of their days.

"After tea has been picked the leaves are withered at a factory on the estate; they are then rolled by machinery and set away for a time to ferment, which process eliminates the active principle of tannic acid which makes the tea injurious. After that it is again dried and assorted into different grades and packed.

"If any one would see some of the Chinese or Japs curing their tea they would never drink it. It is trodden upon by barefooted natives and then after it is baked it is colored with Prussian blue and gypsum. People are thus slowly poisoned to death who use inferior grades and do not know how to draw a cup of tea. The proper way to make a cup of tea is to bring the water to a quick boil and then throw in the leaves, allowing them to steep for five minutes. The liquid should then be drawn off. Tea leaves should never be allowed to steep longer than five minutes, for after that period the poisonous acids are brought out."

Speaking of the religion of Ceylon, Mr. Tissera said that the island was the stronghold of Buddism. Mr. Tissera is himself a sincere Christian and when asked what he thought of the studies in theosophy which were being prosecuted in this country by believers in the oriental doctrine, he replied: "Americans are always looking for something novel. They have the most inquiring minds of any set of people on earth. I think Americans who believe in Budda do so out of mere novelty. The religion is excusable in our poor and ignorant tea laborers, but for intelligent, well educated people to take up the religion, I can hardly understand it."

Ceylon has 25,000 square miles of territory and a population of 3,000,000 inhabitants. It takes between $200 and $300 for passage money from here to Columbo as the distance is something like 11,000 miles.

UNION PRESBYTERIAN REVIVAL—Rev. Patterson the evangelist, at the First Church.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS—Business Meeting of Wayne Street M. E. Church Epworth League.

TRADES UNION—Bricklayers, Painters and Decorators, Hod Carriers.

LODGES—Phoenix Lodge No. 101, K. of P., Fort Wayne Lodge No. 14, I. O. O. F., Sol D. Bayless Lodge, F. A. A. M., Lady Maccabees.

The Indiana state legislature will bid us good bye today. The one good feature of the session was the passage of the Nicholson bill.

The joint resolution for the centennial celebration of the organization of Indiana territory has been passed by the legislature and the event will be a memorable one in the history of the state.

Two thousand Chinese were killed or wounded in a battle with the Japanese at Tien-Chwang Tai. The Japs' loss was but ninety. At this rate, even with their vastly more populous country, the Chinese could not be expected to hold out very long against their more vigorous adversary.

The announcement is made that flaws have been discovered in the Roby winter racing bill, which will make it inoperative. The Roby gang did all they could to defeat the passage of the bill and now that it is a law we may expect them to continue their kicking, but it will probably do them no good.

It is to be hoped that there is truth in the report that Ohio coal operators will raise the price of coal and give the miners living wages. That's one increase of price on necessities the people can stand. If it is known that a fair portion of the increase goes to the miners there will be no protest against the increased price of coal. But the public will not tolerate any increase that will go into the coffers of the coal roads and operators and leave the miners no better off than they are now. Let the price of coal go up if the miner's wages go up with it.

The Nicholson Bill.

No measure that has been introduced in our state legislature for years has created such widespread interest, and for which there was such a general sentiment in favor of its passage, as the Nicholson bill, which passed both houses and will now be the law of the state for the regulation of the liquor traffic. It is a long step forward in the way of better government and it is safe to say that three fourths of the people in the state, without regard to party, are heartily glad that it has been placed upon the statute books of Indiana.

The Nicholson bill is not a radical measure. It is not prohibition. It does not take away from men their privilege of drinking intoxicating liquors if they desire to do so. It simply throws around the business of selling alcoholic beverages such safeguards as will tend to lessen its evils and make easier and possible an enforcement of our present liquor laws, and as such it will prove a good measure and be of lasting benefit to the people all over the state. To the saloonkeeper who desires to obey the law it can have no terrors. It only affects the lawbreaker and to him it means that he must respect the law's majesty and regulate his business by the provisions of legislative enactment. The Nicholson bill can work injustice to no one. It stands for progress, for right, for the protection of home, and is in a word a law which will do much to check the evils that have heretofore come from the traffic in intoxicating drinks.

The one feature of the bill which makes any addition to the present law is that section which permits a majority of the resident voters of a district to prevent the issuance of a license in a specific case. Such a feature is surely in the line of right and the foundation of popular government. The people will decide whether they want the saloon or not. Is not such a feature right? Is it so outrageous a thing that for existence of a saloon—the ministering angel of evil to passions that rend men and work woe and disaster—a majority of the voters shall be the determining power? The Nicholson bill is a good law.

New Forage Plant.

The island of Saghalien, lying between Japan and Siberia, has given to the world a plant that promises to be as valuable as alfalfa for grazing purposes, and it has the advantage of growing where alfalfa will not thrive. The new plant is called sacaline. It resists drought as no other vegetable growth can. It is also adapted to wet and swampy places. Its roots are tremendous and spread all around, and that is why it can thrive anywhere.

Sacaline has been tested as a forage plant in Iowa and in California, and in both states it has met unqualified approval. Swampy, ragged spots where nothing else will grow may be planted with it, and it will quickly cover the ground and afford food alike to sheep, horses, cattle and swine. It grows to a height of 11 feet. Another name for it is giant knot weed. Attention was first drawn to it as a forage plant in France two years ago. A great drought was on, and pastures were dried up. Sacaline had been planted and reared to a considerable extent as an ornamental growth. But during the drought it was observed that domestic animals ate it greedily and fattened on it, while the more it was browsed at the more it grew. The idea was then conceived of cultivating it as a domestic forage plant, which was done with great success.

Sacaline will be especially valuable at the time the pasture fields of the country dry up in August and September. It is to be hoped the agricultural stations in all the states will test it thoroughly for farmers and put them in the way of procuring it if its value is equal to what is claimed for it.

The Electric Railway Is Here.

Farsighted railway presidents and stockholders saw several years ago that the electric road would play havoc with their suburban travel. Electric transit is cheaper, swifter and cleaner than that having steam as its motive power. Already the steam roads in the vicinity of the large cities have been materially damaged by the electric car.

Seeing this, wise railway managers have been for some time preparing to make their enemy their friend by themselves constructing the electric railway. One great consolidated railway company is now preparing to gridiron New York, New Jersey and most of New England with the swift and convenient trolley track. For all distances within 50 miles or thereabouts of a large city the steam road will be paralleled by one whose cars are propelled by electricity. Towns and villages that have heretofore enjoyed the benefits of no railway of any kind are to be tapped and electric lines built to connect them with the company's nearest long distance road. Feeders of this kind will be constructed in all thickly populated regions through which the steam road runs.

The convenience to the public of these electric lines can hardly be computed. They will carry passengers and freight cheaper than the long lines can do. They will run at all hours, making it an easy matter to go from one city to another at any time. They will build up even the distant suburbs of the large cities as no agency has yet done.

The Aurora (Ills.) Daily Express 13 years ago made the experiment of inviting school boys and girls to act as amateur reporters and send in happenings from their neighborhoods. A prize of $10 was given to the best of these young newspaper people. The Express remarks in a recent editorial that some very good reporters were developed by the experiment. Harry Clayton, the youth who took the prize, is now permanently employed on The Express itself. George Denny was another of the young contestants, and he is now on the editorial staff of the Knoxville Whig. Another, Ernest Downer, became a printer. Not a few of the bright young amateur reporters distinguished themselves in after life in various ways.

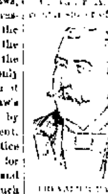

The Japanese Admiral Ito is equal to any European in finesse and diplomacy. When Admiral Fremantle and his staff visited Ito after he had taken Port Arthur, several of the English officers asked Ito if they might not have some of the captured souvenirs of the fight. Trophies of all kinds were lying about the citadel in profusion. Admiral Ito readily granted the request and added to his polished courtesy by offering to send the trophies to the English man-of-war. He insisted on this courtesy toward the British officers. That evening each officer received, with the compliments of Admiral Ito, a fine Bennington rifle which the English nation had sold to the Chinese and which had been captured by the Jap.

EXPOSITION VETERAN.

The Atlanta Exposition's European Agent Has Wits and Fairs Galore.

Chevalier A. Marchi, the European commissioner of the Cotton States and International exposition to be held in Atlanta next fall, has been connected with great expositions in various parts of the world for nearly a score of years. He is a native of Italy and is a member of an old house doing business in Italy and England. His first exposition work was in 1878, when he was appointed a commissioner to the Paris exposition by the Italian government. Since then he has represented his government at the Amsterdam exposition in 1883, the Health exposition in London the following year, the Inventors' exposition, London, in 1885, the Liverpool exposition in 1886, Manchester and Newcastle exposition in 1887, Italian exposition in 1888 and the Paris exposition in 1889.

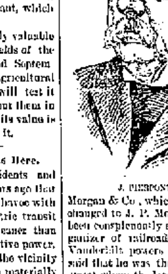

CHEVALIER MARCHI.

In 1890 he represented the Austrian government at the Edinburgh exposition, and his next appointment was commissioner to the Jamaica exposition for Italy and France. He was a member of the board of commissioners of the London expositions of 1891 and 1892 and was later appointed commissioner general to attend the Mexico fair. At the World's fair in Chicago he represented the Italian government and was appointed one of the judges for the art group. From Chicago he went to the California Midwinter fair with an interesting Italian exhibit. He speaks English fluently, and his long experience in exposition work on the other side of the Atlantic makes him the most valuable agent the Atlanta exposition could possibly secure. Most of the European governments have declined to participate officially in the fair, but Chevalier Marchi will appoint a commissioner of high standing in each country, and first class exhibits from England, France, Germany, Belgium, Russia and other countries will be secured.

A FAMOUS FINANCIER.

Banker Morgan Is a Giant Among the Magnates of Wall Street.

Mr. John Pierpont Morgan, the New York banker who has been prominently before the public as the principal agent in negotiating the recent government bond issue, has long been recognized as one of the ablest financiers in the country. For many years he was at the head of the famous firm of Drexel,

J. PIERPONT MORGAN.

Morgan & Co., which has recently been changed to J. P. Morgan & Co. He has been conspicuously successful as a reorganizer of railroads, and as such the Vanderbilt powers bow to him. It is said that he was the only man in Wall street whom the late Jay Gould feared, and he proved his metal in many contests with the "wizard."

Mr. Morgan is a son of Junius Spencer Morgan, a famous banker in his day, who was associated with George Peabody, the philanthropist, whose centenary was celebrated recently. His mother was a daughter of John Pierpont, the poet. He was born in Hartford April 17, 1837, and completed his school education at Gottingen, Germany. Then his real education began in the banking and brokerage firm of Dabney, Morgan & Co., of which he was the junior member. He improved his opportunities to such good effect that he now stands the foremost financier of New York city and possesses a fortune that is variously estimated from $40,000,000 to $60,000,000.

Mr. Morgan is not exactly a popular man. He is very attentive to business and seldom appears in public or in society. He has a town house in Madison avenue, New York, and a fine country seat on the west bank of the Hudson below West Point. He has been twice married, and his second wife is a niece of Benjamin F. Tracy, President Harrison's secretary of the navy. He has three daughters and one son, J. Pierpont, Jr., who has already made a name for himself in Wall street.

Mr. Morgan's personality is thus described by Gath, the well known correspondent: "He is pretty big, decidedly fierce, of high, nervous action, with a large port wine nose, and a pair of dark eyes, and a mixture of the eagle and the vulture. He is attractive the moment he wants to be, and many people wish he wanted to. * * * You have known perhaps the feeble and smiling Drexels and wondered where their fiscal genius was secreted, but when you see this, their partner, you wonder where to secrete yourself."

Mr. Morgan has given many large sums to charity. One of his most notable benefactions was a contribution in 1892 of $500,000 for the extension of the New York trade and technical schools.

The federal fish commission bred and set free at Wood's Holl, Mass., in 1894 over 90,000,000 infant lobsters.

The highly talented composer and leader, also director of the famous Chautauqua School of Music, Prof. W. F. Sherwin, commends the World's Sweetest Songs in substance as follows: "They are a most charming collection for the home circle. The selections show fine taste and excellent judgment, while the variety is wonderful, stretching away from the simple Cradle Song to Haydn's Aria "With Verdure Clad." They will bring genial sunshine and refinement to the home." tf

IN A MOUNTAIN hotel a gay group of tourists were seated about the hall and parlor, engaged in fancy work, reading or light games, while a cheery fire burned brightly on the hearth, for it was late in the season.

"We are just a nice party now," said one young lady, looking up from her tapestry of shaded silks, "I hope nobody else will come."

"Except to fill vacancies as we drop off," said a gentleman as he laid aside his letters. "You will see two vacant chairs at the table tomorrow."

"Very well," was the reply. "If you must go we will spread ourselves and keep the table full. If we can't have Mr. Bruce and you we don't want anyone."

The next morning the home-bound travelers left on the early stage, and at the last moment another guest decided to accompany them.

The party remaining went out, some to ramble in the pine woods, some to the concert in the casino. Returning toward dinner time they found that a telegram had been received from Miss Millicent Paul, bespeaking a room. There was a shout of delight on reading the telegram. Millicent Paul was known to some of the party, and two of them had been her schoolmates at a fashionable seminary three years before.

"Millicent will be the rosebud on our cup of happiness," said one; "and how fortunate that there is room for her at our table."

The dinner bell rang, and the merry group betook themselves to the dining room. Two chairs were turned down at the table.

"Who has come?" the guests inquired of one another.

As they took their seats a man and his wife entered, in a hesitating manner, and were given the two chairs. Swift glances were directed at them, and side looks exchanged. They were evidently plain, hard-working people, entirely unaccustomed to traveling and to hotel life. In an instant the original party became a clique. They hardly concealed their dislike of the newcomers, who had brought among them a personality that jarred on all their sense of what was stylish, conventional and agreeable. The two strangers ate heartily, helped themselves to what they wanted, finished their meal and left the table before the rest of the company had reached their nuts and raisins.

"Did you ever?" "I call it an outrage, forcing such people on us." "The plowman had better stay at home and plow." "His hands took away my appetite." "I hope they are not going to stay over night."

The offending couple spent the afternoon walking about to see the views, and then sat out in the piazza till supper time. After supper the criticisms recommenced.

"They're going to stay. Their trunk has gone up to No. 14." "What will Millicent Paul say? She will have to sit next to them." "She will freeze them with one glance when she sees that hand reaching in front of her for the butter."

"Oh, come now!" said the brother of the last speaker, "you know they needed the butter and you should have passed it, seeing the waiter was not on hand."

"Hush! I'm too provoked for anything. We were such a nice party till those folks pushed in. And when Millicent is coming, too! It just spoils the table."

Next day, while the newcomers were out, Millicent Paul arrived, amid the welcoming exclamations of her friends. She was a tall, slender girl, with an animated countenance; fashionably dressed, carrying gold eyeglasses, and holding her head aloft in a way peculiarly her own. She had plenty to say, said it well and was at once the center of everything.

At dinner she took the vacant seat, and was just receiving her plate of soup when the much criticised couple came in. The guests were all consciously watchful, but Miss Paul seemed to notice nothing. She was giving a vivid description of her journey. Suddenly she paused an instant.

"I beg your pardon!" she said pleasantly, as her embarrassed neighbor attempted, rather awkwardly, to reach the salt, and, placing it conveniently near, she resumed her description.

"May I trouble you for the pepper?" she asked him a little later; "not black, I prefer white. Thank you." And she spoke in exactly the same tone as when she asked handsome young Mr. Waring across the table if he knew when the mail went out. He admired her none the less for it.

"She has a broader outlook than the rest of us," he thought to himself.

A trip to the Notch was planned for the next day; to go in the morning and return at night. There were enough to fill two mountain wagons. No, not quite enough. Those who counted found there would be room for two more.

"Don't mention it, or Mr. Wilbur and his wife may offer to go," said one lady, with a touch of irritation in her voice.

"Oh, we can't have them," said one of the girls who had been Miss Paul's schoolmate, "can we, Millicent?"

"Why not?" asked Miss Paul.

"Oh! why, because—you know—no doubt they are excellent people, but how they would look along with us!"

"My dear Hetty," said Miss Paul, "why be narrow? Why voluntarily live in a groove? I have found the most interesting people in the most unexpected places. Don't turn your back upon your fellow creatures."

Mr. Waring stepped into the hall where the Wilburs stood diffidently examining a last year's register.

"Would you like to take the trip to the Notch to-morrow with the rest of the party?" he asked cordially.

"We would like it very much," said the man.

"Very much indeed!" echoed the wife.

"The expense is three dollars for each seat."

"That is all right," said the man.

"And now which of us will have to sit next to them?" murmured the girls in the parlor.

But when the teams were ready the next morning it was Miss Paul who gracefully and unconcernedly climbed over the wheel and sat by the Wilburs. It was not that she preferred the seat, except that she felt instinctively that they were at a little disadvantage with the others, and it was, perhaps, one secret of her perfect bearing in social circles that her private rule of politeness was the little old fashioned couplet:

"Politeness is to do and say
The kindest thing in the kindest way."

The party was a merry one. They sang songs and waved the hotel colors as they drove along, each wagon drawn by four splendid white horses. They stopped at the lake to enjoy the boating and to hear the echo. While they floated on the water Miss Paul sang two or three Venetian boat songs, to the great delight of the party.

"I learned those of our dark eyed gondolier," she said.

The Notch was at its grandest that day and the mountain ridges stood black and clear against the cloudless sky. There were other parties out, a tally-ho coachful and several teams coming from different directions, but noon time found them all either dining at the nearest hotel or lunching in the woods close by.

A party of southerners, driving up in a surrey, spied Millicent Paul and hailed her enthusiastically. She brought them to her own party under the trees and said, as she presented them:

"These travelers are from Georgia. We met in Washington last winter and became friends."

Mr. Wilbur experienced a slight mental shock. His father had lost both legs in the war, and he himself had never thought of a southerner except as a foe at heart. Yet here were these people bowing to him with the rest, in cordial, pleasant fashion.

Language had not been given to Mr. Wilbur for the purpose of concealing his thought. He looked earnestly at the stranger nearest him.

"I never expected to meet a southern man," he said in blunt tones. "My father was made a cripple in the war."

"And mine lost his life," replied the southern man gently. "But it is all over now. You and I have one country."

"So we have—so we have!" said Mr. Wilbur, and the two shook hands silently. This scene escaped the notice of the rest of the company, who had at once engaged in lively conversation; but to both men it was one of those little strokes that help to chisel character.

"Oh, what a beautiful, beautiful day among the mountains this has been!" said Millicent Paul when they were homeward bound. "I hope you have enjoyed it, too, Mrs. Wilbur."

"I have, very much. I shall never forget it," said the quiet little woman, her face glowing.

The Wilburs left the next day. Miss Paul shook hands with them when they went, and most of the others did the same. They went away happy and satisfied. They said to each other it had been a good holiday. It was a little awkward at first among strangers, but it had all ended pleasantly and they had seen so much.

"Are you going to correspond with them, Millicent?" asked her old schoolmate, teasingly.

"Hetty, dear," said Millicent, "you really must open your eyes wider and see the world you live in; you will find it will repay you. The Wilburs are only passing acquaintances, like many others, we may never meet them again. But, in conversing, I found out one or two things which may interest you. When Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur were married, ten years ago, his mother had just died and there were brothers and sisters beside the crippled father to be cared for. Mrs. Wilbur and her husband put their shoulders cheerfully to the wheel and worked together. It was farm life and farm work. The father died a year ago and the brothers and sisters now take care of themselves. So, this year, when haying and canning were over, the Wilburs decided to take a little holiday and see the mountains. Neither of them ever saw a mountain before. It has been the great event of their lives. I can not tell you how glad I am that they went with us yesterday."

THE VIEW WAS MAGNIFICENT.

"So am I," said Hetty.

"Another little thing came out, too. I found out where they live. They told me it was close by the Shore Line railroad, a mile from the smallest Rhode Island station, a small red farm house with two apple trees and a garden in front. 'With a box border,' I exclaimed, 'two rows of pinks, the bluest larkspurs in the world, and the reddest poppies?' 'Yes, that was it,' she said. Why, girls, I always look at that house and garden when I travel by that road, and have often wondered who lived there. Now I know."

"Girls," said Hetty, after Millicent left the room to get the pillow cover she had promised to show them, "I feel like a crab! Shall I ever be a butterfly? And do you wonder that everybody loves Millicent Paul?"—New York Independent.

They're Not Green, Anyway.

Some slow and lingering punishment should be dealt at the fiend who said that there was not much difference between a grass widow and a grasshopper because either is sure to jump at the first chance. At the same time, young men may make a note of it that grass widows are not green.

THE SHAKERS' TREATMENT FOR DYSPEPSIA.

Most thoughtful people know that the Shakers [illegible] of Mount Lebanon [illegible] Columbia county, New York. Removed from the bustle and worry of the outside world, these thrifty people have devoted their time to the study and investigation of the [illegible] from American woods and [illegible].

[illegible] for the blood, for the [illegible] for constipation and a thousand [illegible] the Shakers [illegible] that the diseases are in most cases caused by poisons developed from the fermentation and putrefaction of food in the stomach which has not been properly digested—in other words, from indigestion.

We all know that undigested food is poisonous and it makes no difference whether it has become poisoned through exposure in a butcher shop or because it has lain undigested in the stomach.

If, therefore, we would cure these diseases, let us return to the root of the tree. In other words, we strengthen the digestive organs so that they will properly perform their functions, when aches and pains, weakness and nervousness will promptly give way to health and strength.

As soon as careful observation had convinced the Shakers that their theory was correct, they set about to devise a harmless remedy, which should act as a tonic to the digestive organs. The now famous Shaker Digestive Cordial was the result.

If you are a confirmed invalid, not knowing just what is the trouble, or one of those unhappy souls who are occasionally distressed after a hearty meal, try this preparation. It cannot hurt the most delicate child, and yet it is so prompt in its effect that the Shakers have placed small 10 cent sample bottles in the hands of the druggists, confident that if once tried the benefit will be so marked that it will be continued.

No matter what your trouble may be, an improvement in the tone and strength of the digestive organs is the first essential to recovery.

THE INSURED WOMEN.

Mrs. Starkweather Believes They Are Much Better Risks Than Men.

One of the most successful among the women breadwinners of the United States is Mrs. Louisa A. Starkweather, who superintends the woman's department of a large life insurance company in St. Louis and receives for her services a salary larger than that of a United States senator, it is said. For many years she has earned an unusually large salary for a woman. She was at one time a school teacher at $1,500 a year, but relinquished that occupation because she did not get a $2,400 position that she considered herself entitled to. She has since demonstrated that her services are worth twice as much as the coveted position paid, and it is said that her income this year will approach very near the $10,000 mark. She has spent 12 years in life insurance work and is now at the head of her department, with a large force of assistants subject to her direction. She is 48 years of age, but looks much younger.

LOUISA A. STARKWEATHER.

"I am a solicitor of insurance on the lives of women exclusively for the reason that women are such important financial factors nowadays," she says. "Women are heavy holders of bank stock, they own and operate mines, they speculate in real estate and cattle and are merchants and manufacturers. Throughout the United States they represent millions in capital, and it is said on good authority that in 1893 the taxation on woman's property in Kansas paid the entire running expenses of the state for that year.

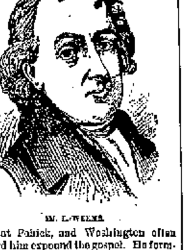

"Women are living better, and therefore are better risks for companies than were our grandmothers. I have in mind a number of young old women—namely, Elizabeth Cady Stanton at 79 even manages a typewriter; Miss Susan B. Anthony at 74 is both active and useful; Julia Ward Howe at 75 does not fail to give her essays and poems as she did 30 years ago; Mrs. Henry Ward Beecher at 83 is supporting herself by her pen; Mrs. Gilbert at 74 and Mrs. John Drew at 78 are both young and as graceful in the minuet as they were 40 years ago; Mrs. D. P. Bowers, 70, and Maggie Mitchell, over 60, are still charming as they enter the realm of old age."

THE GREAT HATCHET STORY.

Said to Have Been Invented by Weems, First Biographer of Washington.

There wasn't any hatchet. There wasn't any cherry tree. There wasn't any conjunction between a hatchet and a cherry tree. There wasn't any "Father, I cannot tell a lie. I did it with my little hatchet." The famous story about Washington, so the latter day historian tells us, was a fairy tale invented by Mason L. Weems, the first biographer of Washington, for the purpose of impressing Young America with the great youthful virtue of the first president. Weems was a Maryland preacher who wrote biographies and sold them and other books, who was an ardent temperance reformer, and who would as readily scrape a fiddle at a dance as preach from the pulpit. He was born in Maryland Oct. 1, 1759, was educated for the ministry in London and returned to America a regular minister of the Church of England.

He married Fanny Ewell of Virginia in 1795 and resided at Bellaire, Va. He was not attached to any particular parish, but preached wherever he happened to be. He frequently occupied the pulpit at Pohick, and Washington often heard him expound the gospel. He formed a connection with Matthew Carey, a Philadelphia publisher, and sold his books throughout Maryland and Virginia, traveling from place to place with a wagon load of literary wares. He cared little for creed and would fill any pulpit regardless of denomination. Just 95 years ago he published the first life of Washington. It was called "A History of the Life and Death, Virtues and Exploits of General George Washington, Faithfully Taken From Authentic Documents." The book had a great sale, and one of its anecdotes of the young Washington became a national joke. Later biographers were unable to find any evidence establishing the truth of the stories, and there seems little doubt that the imaginative Weems invented them. He afterward wrote lives of William Penn, Francis Marion and Benjamin Franklin, and died at Beaufort, S. C., May 23, 1825.

DEATH OF MR. CROPSEY

Was Depot Master at Chicago for Twenty-two Years.

A Negro Tramp Comes to Grief at Upper Sandusky—School of Electricity—Local Gossip.

A. C. Cropsey died at Crown Point yesterday, after an illness dating from October, 1893. The remains will be taken to Freeport, N. Y., for interment. Mr. Cropsey was depot master at Chicago for the Pennsylvania company from May, 1871, up to the fall of 1893, when he was taken ill and was succeeded by Thomas Glenn, formerly of this city. The news of his death will be received with sorrow in Pennsylvania railway circles and by the traveling public.

TRAMP HURT.

Thomas Hall, conductor on second No. 74, of the Pittsburg, had difficulty with a party of tramps in Ohio this morning. At Kirkby the hobos were driven from the train, but they immediately climbed on again. When the train reached Upper Sandusky, Mr. Hall and his crew again ordered the men off and they obeyed with the exception of one negro named Henry Wells, who became stubborn and drew a knife, which he threatened to use upon the trainmen. Mr. Hall struck the darkey a terrific blow with his fist, knocking him off the car. The fellow fell upon his head and was considerably stunned. He was picked up and carried into the freight house office, where an examination showed that his injuries were trifling, consisting chiefly of a contusion on the parietal bone. The marshal of Upper Sandusky took charge of Wells and turned him over to the township trustee. Wells is now in the county infirmary at Upper Sandusky.

SCHOOL OF ELECTRICITY.

Tomorrow evening, at their room in the City Y. M. C. A. building, will meet the Fort Wayne branch of the National School of Electricity. This class was organized last July and has been regular in its weekly meetings ever since. The manner in which its members have taken to the study of electricity, clearly shows the long felt want of such a class in every city and town where young men are growing up unacquainted, technically, with the enormous and widespread applications of electricity surrounding them. Since its organization the following subjects have been taken up and gone into minutely, leaving nothing to be desired.

Nature and properties of electricity.
Frictional electricity and its generators.
Electric batteries and electricity produced by chemical action.
Nature and properties of magnetism.
Magnetic fields and the magnetic effects of electric currents.
Miscellaneous effects of electric currents.
Laws governing the flow of electricity.
Heating effects of electric currents.
Construction of electrical instruments.
Measurement of electrical resistance.
Theory and operation of telegraphs.
Theory and operation of telephones.
Principles of dynamos and motors.
Arc lighting and its machinery.
Incandescent lighting and power transmission.
The manufacture of incandescent lamps and many other subjects too numerous to mention.

The last meeting of the class was held at the new laboratory of the electric light works, where many curious and wonderfully interesting experiments were performed to the thorough enjoyment of the entire class. Some of the experiments were as follows:

A copper ring, weighing two pounds, was poised in mid air by being acted upon by alternating impulses or waves of magnetism. Incandescent and arc lights were operated without being in contact with the source of currents, or, in other words, the lamps could be lighted up with plate glass or any other insulator of any convenient thickness interposed between the lamps and the wires carrying the electric current from the dynamo. An electric shotgun, in which a piece of aluminum tubing, was thrown the entire length of the laboratory from an insolated rod, and without being in contact with any wires.

Water was boiled in five seconds over a sheet of tissue paper, handkerchief, straw hat or one's own hand. Rods of iron and steel half an inch in diameter were melted asunder and welded together in the same time. The magnetism was taken out of watches in less time than it takes to tell it, and hosts of other electrical phenomena just as wonderful as the foregoing to the uninitiated.

The class instructors are Messrs. Arthur Hadley and Thomas Duncan, both of the engineering staff of the electric light works.

It must be borne in mind that in all the demonstrations and lectures the apparatus itself is before the class, so that it is not merely what is popularly called book learning, but actual theory and practice combined, the ideal as it were. This has in itself made the undertaking a colossal success, by stimulating a desire in each member to let nothing pass unobserved, whenever or whatever his curiosity might dictate.

A MEMBER.

BRIEF MENTIONS.

The Two Johns company went to Wabash last night.

Ben Boyce, of the Bass blacksmith shop, is sick and off duty.

H. B. Tobey left over the Wabash this morning for St. Louis.

A. L. Sonnenberg left over the Wabash road this morning for Walla Walla, Wash.

J. Roldel and C. Auman, of the Pittsburg lumber yards, are sick and off duty.

Machinist W. H. Moss, of the Wabash shops, spent Sunday with friends at Garrett City, Ind.

C. S. Knight, of the electric works, went to New York yesterday on business for the company.

Jimmy Burns, son of the Pittsburg blacksmith, has taken a position at the Standard Wheel works.

Andy Brillhart, of the electric works, is kept from his shop duties by the illness of one of his children.

Luther Wright, of the Wabash paint shop, has gone to the company's hospital at Peru, for treatment.

Ed. Claytor, of Nottingham, Ind., spent Sunday in the city, the guest of his father-in-law, Joseph Carry.

Mrs. John Zober, who has been very ill, is recovering. Her husband is a car builder, employed at the east shops.

Theodore Kucher went to Pullman this morning to assist Frank Sweringen in inspecting cars for the Pennsylvania company.

H. Brake and E. Burkholder, painters, have been employed to paint the Pittsburg shops at this point. They will be assisted by John Ohneck, of the east shops. The buildings of the entire plant will be painted inside and out, with the exception of the brick walls.

Joseph Martin spent Sunday in the city with his folks. He is now conducting a plumbing business in Hartford City.

Misses Lydia Doerner and Rose Weber, who were sick several days, resumed work at the electric works this morning.

Capt. R. H. Harrison resumed charge of affairs at the iron machine department of the car shops today after a weeks' illness.

Chick Stahl signed with a ball club last Saturday and as soon as the season opens, he will resign his place at the Pittsburg shops.

Amil Deister, of the Bass machine shop, had one of his fingers pinched in the gearings of a lathe last Saturday. He is off duty for repairs.

Mrs. George Wilcox, wife of the Pittsburg painter, has recovered from a severe illness and Mr. Wilcox has resumed his work in the shops.

Frank Turner, apprentice in the Wabash machine shop, who had been sick at the Peru hospital, returned and reported for duty this morning.

John Wolf and George Foughbought, of the Bass machine shop, who were off duty several days on account of injuries received, returned to work this morning.

District Passenger Agent R. G. Thompson, who accompanied Dr. T. J. Dills to California, left Los Angeles last Saturday and will arrive home next Thursday.

Thomas Kavanaugh, blacksmith at the Wabash shops, has returned from Chicago, where he was called some days ago by a letter stating that his brother was very ill.

Peter Berg, of the Pittsburg blacksmith shop went to his work this morning with his face wreathed in smiles. His happiness is due to the arrival of a son at his home.

W. J. Manion, of the electric works has returned from a pleasure trip through the south. He visited Florida and Louisiana and was at New Orleans during the Mardi Gras.

The Pennsylvania company's coal docks in this city have a storage capacity of 30,000 tons and they are to be filled to that extent. Already 12,000 tons have been placed in them.

Abe Fisher, general foreman of the Pennsylvania car shops at Wellsville, Ohio, spent Sunday in this city. Mr. Fisher was at one time foreman of the company's lumber yards in this city.

L. A. Buchanan, J. Wink, W. McDowell, C. F. Scott, G. W. Jackson and E. E. Blackburn, Nickel Plate brakemen, who had been on the off duty list for various reasons, reported yesterday.

Thomas Hibbins, slate roofer for the Pittsburg, came down from Chicago Saturday to spend Sunday with his family. He is now engaged in putting a new roof on the round house at Chicago.

The Nickel Plate has put on two more freight crews on this end of the line. They are Conductors Meridith and Houder and Brakemen C. B. Snyder and S. C. Spangler. They went to Stony Island yesterday to get their cabooses.

John Buechader, who has been lying in Harper's hospital at Detroit for some weeks, writes friends here that he is improving and hopes to soon be able to leave the hospital. Mr. Buechader is a frequent visitor here and is well known by many of our citizens.

Senator H. G. Davis, in his private car Mayflower, came down from Chicago on Pittsburg train No. 6 this morning and went to Grand Rapids on No. 7. He will return tomorrow on his way to Baltimore. Mr. Davis is the president of the West Virginia, Central and Pittsburg road.

A broken brakebeam caused the derailment of two cars in the second section of Pittsburg train No. 72 at 2.15 o'clock this morning. No. 15 and No. 4, passenger trains, were each delayed thirty minutes by the accident. The wreck crew from this city was called out. The accident happened at Larwill.

Grip seems to be most prevalent among shopmen, other classes of people being nearly exempt from it. Some of the factories are short on help because of the ravages of the disease among the employes. Among those who are now down with the grip is William Bendure, of the Fort Wayne Furniture works, who has been unable to work for over a week.

Mr. Charles McFadden, a widely known railroad contractor, died at Philadelphia last week. His work as a contractor was chiefly confined to eastern states, Pennsylvania in particular, and few, if any, contractors who confined their operations to these states, built so many miles of railroad. In early life he was engaged on the Pittsburg division of the Pennsylvania railroad.

A press dispatch from Denver reports that the pay car of the Union Pacific was followed over the road on its last trip by a gang of swindlers who bought up employes' checks in large numbers, raising them to $110 each, and then passed them on storekeepers and others for small purchases, receiving considerable amounts of money in change. It is said they worked in nearly every town where any considerable number of employes are located.

Conductor Buckhouse, who lives at Lima, where small pox is supposed to be lurking at present, and runs on the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton road between that city and Toledo, is a practical joker. To frighten the yard men at Toledo, he told them his house at Lima was quarantined, but he "wouldn't stay in for anybody and when the time came for me to go out on my run I escaped from the house and here I am." The men knew Buckhouse was joking but they pretended to believe him, and were afraid, apparently, to go near him. Calling the yardmaster to their assistance they concocted a scheme by which the joker was made to pay dearly for his fun. An engine coupled onto Buckhouse's caboose, took it three miles down the track and set it upon a gravel pit siding where it and the conductor were compelled to remain all day.

In locomotive and car building the outlook for business is brightening.

Charles T. Strawbridge, of the Bass offices, is bedfast with the grip. He was taken ill with a chill at first, last Saturday, and is now quite sick.

Nickel Plate engine men who are on the off duty list: Engineer Lynch, taking a rest; Firemen J. S. Lee, John Lalander and Henry Rose, sick.

Barney Smith, an engineer on the Chicago division of the Panhandle road, has fallen heir to $175,000 by the death of an aunt in New York.

Nickel Plate engine 25 blew out a cylinder head while en route with a freight train to this city yesterday. She managed to get in with her train.

Mrs. C. Wyman, of Huntington, Ind., has been appointed organizer and inspector of the ladies' auxiliary lodge of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers.

Calvin S. Brice, president of the Lake Erie and Western, announces that the proposed purchase of the Indianapolis, Decatur and Western has been given up.

Charles Prowell, of Andrews, a Wabash freight conductor, has received notice of his promotion to the passenger service. He will take a run on the new line, between Chicago and Detroit.

There were three sections of Nickel Plate passenger train No. 1 this morning. Engineer Coogan, with engine 171, and Engineer Murphy, with engine 172, took the second and third sections to Chicago.

Engine No. 165 came out of the Stony Island shops Saturday and has been assigned to a run on the third district, in charge of Engineer Braithwait and Fireman Bell. The engine has been thoroughly repaired.

Mr. W. W. Willock, of Allegheny, Pa., has been appointed general manager of the Monongahela Connecting railroad to succeed the late Mr. W. C. Quincy. The railroad is an important connecting freight line at Pittsburg.

The Big Four railroad is nursing a scheme for insuring passengers against accident while on the company's train. The proposed plan is to issue a mileage book at $20 without, or $21 with $3,000 insurance against death and $25 weekly indemnity for accidental disability.

Indianapolis Journal: The old project of paralleling the Pittsburg, Fort Wayne & Chicago road has been revived, and it is said a number of men of large means are behind the enterprise. The line was surveyed some years ago and several towns voted subsidies to it, which have now expired.

The Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers of the Canadian Pacific have an article of agreement in their schedule which requires the company to select all men for the position of master mechanic from locomotive engineers employed upon the road. Mr. T. G. Shaughnessy, vice president of the company, is said to have expressed himself very favorable to this part of the agreement.

It is reported from Memphis, Tenn., on good authority that Hetty Green will be a bidder for the Little Rock & Memphis railway, which is to be sold at receiver's sale April 17. It is stated that if Hetty Green is successful in her bid she will extend the road from Litt'e Rock to Greenville, Tex., where it will connect with the Houston & Texas Central railway, opening up a new trunk line from Memphis.

A rifle ball went crashing through a smoking car window of a Wabash train last Saturday night, narrowly missing the head of C. F. Smith, a Toledo traveling man, who boarded the train at Huntington to come to this city. The shot was fired from the banks of a cut, as the ball passed in at one window and out at the opposite one, perhaps a few inches below a level. A moment before the shot Mr. Smith had leaned over with his arms on the forward seat to speak to an acquaintance. Had it not been for this the ball would have passed through his head. There was no passenger in the opposite seat.

The case of Patrick Boler vs. the Wabash Railroad company, which was instituted in the Allen circuit court, has been changed to the Wells circuit court and will be tried at Bluffton by Judge Vaughn. In October, 1893, the plaintiff was employed as yard engineer at Andrews. One day, as he alleges, he was pitched head foremost out of his cab window by the drivers dropping down through a defective frog. In the fall Boler, who is a large man, had the bones of both wrists broken, disabling him for life. He asks $5,000 damages. The Messrs. Stuart, of Lafayette, the railway attorneys, were here in connection with the case last Saturday.

The Modern Invalid

Has tastes medicinally, in keeping with other luxuries. A remedy must be pleasantly acceptable in form, purely wholesome in composition, truly beneficial in effect and entirely free from every objectionable quality. If really ill he consults a physician; if constipated he uses the gentle family laxative Syrup of Figs.

Wealth In Texas.

Besides being a pleasant place to visit, Texas does not take a back seat as a wealth producer. On the Gulf Coast may be found great attractions for home-seekers; 20 acres of land, planted in pears, nets owner $5,000 yearly.

C. A. Hartwell, Passenger Agent, A. T. & S. F. R. R., Monadnock Building, Chicago, will furnish free phamphlet describing Texas. Write for it.

BUT HE MIGHT HAVE BEEN.

But He Might Have Been a Relative or Something of That Sort.

She sat right opposite a bashful looking young man in a dark red arm, and he had looked at him so steadily for two minutes that he grew impatient. Finally she waived the market basket, two bundles and stalk of celery to the next seat. Hat and leaned forward.

"I never met, sir, but ain't your name Biggs?"

"No, ma'am," he said, blushing.

"Then you're not a son of Hiram Hadley Biggs of East Saginaw?"

"I am not."

"Not Hiram Biggs' nephew or cousin?"

"No."

"Name isn't even Biggs?" she urged persuasively.

"It is not."

"Well, I thought for sure you was one of 'em. I never saw such a family likeness."

The young man smiled that uncertain smile which is played, like trumps, when in doubt; and there was a welcome silence for three blocks. Then the owner of the market basket leaned over once more.

"It seems to me you favor old Mrs. Biggs more'n you do Hiram," she said.

"Ah!"

"Yes. She was a Higgins. You have her eyes and hair. There is a Biggs look though, sure enough," she added reflectively, as she eyed the young man still more critically.

"Born in East Saginaw, weren't you?" she inquired suddenly.

"No."

"Ever been there?"

"No."

"Well, don't that beat," she declared emphatically, "and if I had time I bet I'd get to the bottom of this. I'm sorry I have to get off here," she added as she gathered up the market basket, the two bundles and the stalk of celery and started for the door.

"Too bad, ain't it, to leave it unsettled like that?" she said regretfully to the conductor as she climbed off the car.

But the young man didn't think so. He looked as if he had shaken a load off his devoted head, and even the conductor seemed relieved as he started up the car again.

"Hold on, conductor," screamed the friend of all the Biggses, dropping the market basket, two bundles and stalk of celery on the track and hurrying after the car.

"It might be on his mother's side," she said breathlessly. "Ask him was his mother a Popham or did"—But the car was gone.—Detroit Free Press.

A Bargain In Sightseeing.

"What did you give that stranger money fur?" said Aunt Eliza as she and Uncle Hiram waited in the station after getting off the train from Hayville.

"That's all right, Liza," said Uncle Hiram triumphantly. "That's a nice feller. I give him $2, and he's goin to fix it so we can go out and see the skyscrapers without extra charge."—Chicago Record.

Mr. and Mrs Harry Koplinger very pleasantly entertained the Saturday Evening Pedro club at their home on West Creighton avenue.

Miss Katherine Hollman will leave this evening for Philadelphia to visit her sister, Miss Emily, who is attending school at Mrs. Sutton's.

The Foreign Missionary society of the Wayne street M. E. church will meet this week on Friday afternoon with Mrs. L. R. Hartman, at her home on West Wayne street.

Mrs. F. F. Tapp, of 13 Ohio street, celebrated the sixty-seventh anniversary of her birth Saturday evening by entertaining her family and several other guests at 6 o'clock dinner. A very merry company was gathered around the board and Mrs. Tapp received many congratulations and good wishes for the future.

The announcement of the marriage of Miss Anna Lemon, M. D., and Mr. William Griffith, of the Universalist church, in Muncie, Ind., will be a surprise to her friends. Miss Lemon practiced her profession for two years in this city and is a graduate of the Fort Wayne College of Medicine. She is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Lemon, of Springfield township.

Last Thursday evening Miss Cora Moore entertained at a reception at her home, in "Park Place," in honor of Miss Grace Paterson and Miss Jennie Bollman, of Decatur. The house was artistically decorated with carnations and smylax. At 12 o'clock a sumptuous supper was served in the dining room, which was decorated with flowers and palms.

Saturday afternoon Mrs. G E Bursley charmingly entertained at a 5 o'clock luncheon at her home, on Fairfield avenue, in honor of Mrs. Edwin Evans, of Toledo, who is spending a few days in this city. The table was prettily decorated in scarlet and white carnations. The guests were Miss Eva R Nelson, Mrs. Henry Bond, Mrs. Clark Fairbank, Mrs. Stephen B. Bond Mrs J. Koons, Mrs. Evans.

Mrs. C. P. Ferry, who formerly lived in this city, is now residing at Decatur, Ind., and a few days ago she observed her eightieth birthday. Her many friends in this city will be interested in the following account of the event taken from the Decatur Democrat: "Mrs. C. P. Ferry entertained a company of twelve ladies at her home on Winchester avenue, Saturday afternoon. Mrs Ferry, who enjoyed the distinction of being the oldest resident settler of Fort Wayne until her removal to this place a short time ago, has passed her eightieth birthday, but has lost little of her youthful vivacity and enjoyment of society and retains all of her charming hospitality. Her reminiscences of life and society in Fort Wayne fifty years ago were most interesting and pleasing to her guests. At 5 o'clock tea was served. Mrs Ferry presided at the urn and Miss Orvis, assisted by Mrs Nachtrieb, dispensed sandwiches, oyster patties, iced fruit and cake. Rev. E. F. Gregg added cheer to the tea drinking by his genial presence. The ladies present were Mesdames Gregg, Nachtrieb, Locke, Moffett, Gast, Hensey, Champer, Miller, Misses Studebaker and Orvis, Mrs Williams, of Delta, Ohio, and Mrs Alverson, of Spencer, Ind."

Saturday evening, Fred M. Grummon, of No. 189 East Jefferson street, was very pleasantly surprised by a number of his associates, in honor of his twenty-fourth birthday. The evening was passed with music and various games, and at 11:30 an elegant luncheon was served. The amusements were arrested long enough for Mr. Charles Rosenthal to present the host with an elegant rocking chair, in behalf of his friends, and a beautiful pastel painting of his pet dog, from his father and mother. Numerous other presents were also received. Mr. Grummon acknowledged the gifts in a few appropriate remarks, admitting the surprise to be complete. Those present were: Misses Myrtle Titus, Maude Piatt, Nina Strock, Anna Yann, Cora Saynor, Grace Titus, Nora Pence Pranville, Ind.; Cora Poulson, and Mesdames C. B. Strother, of Latty, Ohio; H. Guthrie, of Huntington, Ind., and C. H. Piatt and Messrs. Charles Rosenthall, George McCurdy, O to Meyer, Ad Lamar George Barbier, Kafe Streck and Fred M. Grummon.

ONE A DAY.

This is the Motto of the Arcade Music Store.

We have sold so far this month one instrument a day and by keeping this up it will enable us to give wholesale prices. We are expecting a large stock of new pianos soon and are making special efforts to clean out all of our second-hand square and slightly used uprights at prices that will surprise you.

Think of a good square piano, carved legs, seven and one-third octave $35.00.

One good upright piano, sold for $237.50, in use but seven months. We were obliged to take it back on account of loss of position during the great railroad strike—$45.00 paid on it—only $150.00.

VENO COMPELLED TO REMAIN.

Saengerbund Hall Crowded to the Doors Last Night.

The Needy of the City Bring Notes From Priests and Clergymen—A Bountiful Supply of Provisions Given to All—Hundreds of Patients Unable to Receive Treatment the Past Week—Veno and Staff to Remain for a Few Days Longer.

SANGERBUND Hall was crowded to the doors last night, and the large audience present were treated to one of the best lectures ever delivered in this city. At the close of the lecture Veno requested all the poor and needy to come forward, and distributed a large quantity of groceries and provisions to those who had letters from their clergymen.

Veno gave these benefit lectures during the winter in Pittsburg and Indianapolis, and was instrumental in relieving much suffering thereby.

More cures are being reported every day. Mrs. Brinsley, of 264 West Washington street, came to Veno's office on Saturday. She has been afflicted with rheumatism for some time and compelled to use a cane. After the first application of the Electric Fluid she was able to walk without her crutch

Veno's Curative Syrup, 50c a bottle, is a positive cure for weak stomach, dyspepsia, liver, kidney, blood and urinary troubles, sleeplessness, poor appetite and general weakness, and when used with Veno's Electric Fluid, 50c. a bottle, will certainly cure the worst and most desperate forms of rheumatism, paralysis, spinal troubles, sciatica, neuralgia, stiff joints, weak muscles, numbness, and all aches and pains. Veno's Lung Tonic, 50c. a bottle, is a specific for throat and lung trouble, asthma, bronchitis, hoarseness, coughs, colds, &c. Veno Concentrated Tonic and Nervine, $3 a bottle, is a specific for nervous prostration, St. Vitus dance, and all extreme nervous cases. It is a first class brain and nerve food. Veno's Vito, $2 a bottle, is a positive cure for weakness of men. Veno has other specifics for deafness, catarrh, fits, piles, dizziness, delicate ailments of women, such as displacement of the womb, female weakness, &c., also private diseases of men.

The Veno remedies sold by all druggists (The Meyer Bros Drug Co., wholesale distributing agents) and at Veno's office, Saengerbund hall, where Veno and Staff can be consulted from 9 a. m to 5:30 p. m. Advice and consultation free to all.

Didn't Like It.

"Daubs is as mad as hops about his picture that was on exhibition."

"Wasn't it noticed?"

"Yes, took a prize."

"What's he mad about then?"

"Well, it was a picture of cows, and it was awarded the prize for the best picture of sheep."—Tit Bits.

The Usual Difference.

Lady—I see you advertise "good" butter, "fine" butter, "extra" butter, "best" butter and "gilt edged" butter. What is the difference?

New Boy (not very well trained)—Th' "gilt edged" butter is fit to eat. The rest isn't.—Good News.

Getting It Mixed.

"When I came down here because I couldn't stand the climate up north," said the North Dakota man who was shivering in a Georgia winter resort, "I seem to have jumped out of the frying pan into the—er—into the icebox."—Chicago Tribune.
